Mystery Clouds Valerie Percy Murder Case

KENILWORTH, Ill. (AP) — Police said they were without a suspect, motive or hard clue today as they continued their investigation of the mystery-shrouded murder of Valerie Percy, daughter of Republican leader Charles H. Percy.

Valerie, 21, blonde and pretty, was beaten and stabbed to death in her bed early Sunday morning while the Percys and two of their children, including the victim's twin sister, slept in nearby bedrooms. Two other children were away at the time.

Percy, 47, is the Republican candidate in the November election against U.S. Sen. Paul Douglas and has been active in both state and national politics.

Proofreader Found Slain

CINCINNATI (AP)—The half-clad body of a 28-year-old proofreader, Miss Nancy Lou Haffner, was found Sunday in her disarrayed ground-floor apartment in the Mount Washington area.

Sgt. Russell Jackson disclosed the unmarried woman was eight months pregnant. She was a proofreader for the Cincinnati Post Times Star the last few years, and before that held a similar job with the Cincinnati Enquirer.

She also was a flight instructor, qualified to teach beginners on both single and multi-engine planes.

Jackson said she came to Cincinnati about six years ago from Charleston, W. Va., and later legally changed her name from Nancy Lou Thomas to Nancy Lou Haffner.

Jackson said a young male flying associate of Miss Haffner was questioned.

An autopsy disclosed a depressed-type wound on the back of her head and a bruise on the right jaw. It also disclosed a quantity of undissolved, unassimilated medicine the nature of which was not released by authorities.

A small hammer was found near the body, but there were no bloodstains on it.

The body was found at noon after Mrs. Wayne Wyckoff went to the apartment to see why Miss Haffner had failed to keep a Saturday night babysitting appointment. The victim was wearing only the top part of a pink negligee.

Books had been knocked from a book-case, a lamp had fallen over and a curtain rod on the plate glass front door was broken, police said.

Bogus Bill Case Closed

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The Secret Service says a track-down of a counterfeiting operation that spanned the continent has ended in the arrest of a man in a parked car near this city's nightclub section and the finding of $435,000 in bogus bills in a home.

Two Baltimore policemen, alerted by the Secret Service, awakened Andrew B. King, 36, Los Angeles, as he slept in his car Sunday and arrested him.

Later Robert Powell, agent in charge of Baltimore's Secret Service office, said questioning of King led to the discovery of $435,000 in bogus $10 bills in a home in suburban Owings Mills.

Taken before a U.S. commissioner, King waived preliminary hearing and was ordered held on $25,000 bond. He faces action by a federal grand jury which convenes Tuesday.

Thant Ponders Extending Term

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant said today he would consider remaining in office until the end of this year, if members of the world organization fail to agree on a successor by Nov. 3 when his term expires.

He declined to say whether he would agree to stay on beyond Dec. 31.

Thant made his comment at a news conference in which he also declared that East-West relations had reached a new low and that U.N. action on disarmament and other key issues was being severely hampered.

Surveyor 2 Launch Set

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans Tuesday to launch Surveyor 2 toward a soft landing in the center of the moon's visible face to explore a potential manned landing spot.

An Atlas-Centaur rocket is to boost the 2,204-pound spacecraft skyward during a 43-minute favorable period starting at 7:46 a.m. EDT. The three-legged, camera-carrying vehicle is to cover the quarter-million-mile course in 63 hours, aiming for a feathery touchdown in the Sinus Medii (Central Bay) Thursday night.

The target is about 800 miles east of the Ocean of Storms where Surveyor 1, America's first lunar soft-lander, touched down in June. Performing far beyond expectations, Surveyor 1 relayed 11,237 close-up pictures that indicated the surface where it landed is strong enough to support a manned expedition.

Scientists believe the Sinus Medii is a fairly level area with a few ridges and craters. The target point for Surveyor 2 is about 14 miles north of a large crater called Opolzer, which that some large craters are surrounded by dense fields of boulders extending out from the rim to a distance equal to the diameter of the crater. If this is also true of Opolzer, Surveyor 2 might get down on rocks and be damaged.

Surveyor 2 is almost identical to its predecessor.

Pope Asks For Prayers To End Viet Nam War

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today proclaimed October a month of worldwide prayer to end the Viet Nam war and set Oct. 4 as a day of special observance for Roman Catholics.

Warning that "we are threatened by a more extensive and more disastrous calamity that endangers the human family," the Pope called for a redoubling of prayers next month.

He urged Catholics everywhere to join in a special "day of prayer" Oct. 4 — the first anniversary of his peace pilgrimage to the United Nations in New York — and announced he would preside at a ceremony that day in St. Peter's Basilica.

In the fourth encyclical of his reign, the Pope told the world's half billion Roman Catholics that he lifted his voice "with piercing cry and with tears" to political leaders to "prevent the further spread of the conflagration and even to extinguish it entirely."

He called for a meeting to work out plans for a peace and said "a settlement should be reached now, even at the expense of some inconvenience or loss, for (otherwise) it may have to be made later in the train of bitter slaughter and involve great loss."

Negro Rally Will Not Aid Rep. Powell

Move To Oust Chairman Slated For Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Sam M. Gibbons says nothing Negro leaders can do will keep Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from losing his chairmanship powers of the House Education and Labor Committee.

Asked about plans for a rally in New York City Tuesday in Powell's behalf, Gibbons, a Florida Democrat, said, "I don't think it would have any effect on the outcome of the vote."

About offers by some Negro leaders to picket the homes of committee members known to be against Powell, a New York Democrat from Harlem, Gibbons said in an interview: "Anything like that involving members of Congress is fraught with danger. You don't threaten people who are in the highest law-making body in the land and perhaps the most important in the world. Congressmen are not intimidated. Each man votes according to his conscience."

ICC Affirms NYC, PRR Rail Merger

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission reaffirmed today its approval of the New York Central and asked for more testimony on steps being taken to protect three smaller, competing railroads.

The merger is scheduled to be effective Sept. 30.

The three competing railroads are the Erie-Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson and the Boston and Maine.

The commission had received more than 20 petitions relating to the merger. Its affirmation today of action it took last April 27 was in answer to those questions.

The commission said that except for protection of the three small railroads, it found no cause for further reconsideration.

The scheduled merger would create the largest rail system in the nation. An attempt to block it is before a federal court in New York.

Several railroads brought the suit to block the action.

The date for the further hearings will be announced later.

Opinion Asserts County Cannot Make Land Trade

Pickaway County cannot acquire land for airport purposes by means of trading acreage, according to an opinion conveyed by County Prosecutor Robert H. Huffer.

Prosecutor Huffer, in a letter to the Pickaway Commissioners, pointed out that there is no state statute authorizing the county to trade land with any person or other political subdivision. His opinion was sought by the solons earlier this month.

The legal advice was requested after the commissioners launched preliminary negotiations to secure a 15-acre tract of privately owned land that could be combined with county property at the old infirmary to form a possible airport site.

The land sought is owned by the Croman family. The owners advanced a proposal calling for an exchange of their property for a similar sized tract owned by the county along Route 22.

HUFFER further explained that the commission cannot deed county owned property to an airport authority, if one is appointed. He noted that statutes provide for a county to lease land to a controlling authority, but not convey it to such a panel.

The prosecutor added that negotiations procedure normal followed is for the commission to approach persons owning land in which the county is interested as a means of arriving at a price agreeable to both parties. The letter also explained that if an agreement

Wallace Law Too Strong For South

KENTUCKY DAM VILLAGE, Ky. (AP) — Many Southern governors agree with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace the federal government is pushing too hard, too fast on school desegregation.

But none of those interviewed at the Southern Governors' Conference indicate that their states have any intentions today of following Wallace's example of open defiance on the issue.

Alabama, at Wallace's urging, recently passed a state law forbidding school desegregation except under federal court order.

"We have told our school systems that they do not need to go beyond the (1964 civil rights) law," said Gov. Robert E. McNair of South Carolina. "We have promised legal aid to those which the federal government seeks to have go beyond this law. But there are no plans to go further."

School desegregation in the South currently ranges from that in such states as Tennessee, Kentucky, Florida and Oklahoma, which report virtually no problems, to that in Alabama, South Carolina, Louisiana, Mississippi, Virginia and Georgia. In the latter states, the governors were unanimous that the guidelines on school desegregation go beyond the Civil Rights Act and that the Justice Department seeks to exceed the guidelines or both.

"I most certainly feel that the guidelines exceed the authority of the new Civil Rights Act and I so told the head of HEW," said Gov. Mills E. Godwin of Virginia, referring to John W. Gardner, secretary of health, education and welfare.

Godwin said the Office of Education and the Justice Department both were "very unreasonable in their approach" to the issue. The Virginia governor (Continued on Page 2)

State Department Confirms Peking

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department spokesman said today that U.S. combat planes may have flown over Red Chinese territory accidentally on Sept. 9 and Sept. 17.

The violations of Red Chinese air space — which had been charged by the Peking government — would have occurred "during the breakdown from air engagements over North Viet Nam," the spokesman said.

In response to questions, officials said that this might be the first occasion on which the U.S. had actually conceded publicly and officially that the Red Chinese border with North Viet Nam had been crossed by combat planes.

Last Friday, a Peking statement said that two American planes attacked Chinese territory on Sept. 9 and that one of them was damaged in a battle with Chinese fighters.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said to a Friday news conference that he had no information to confirm the Chinese charge.

"We have investigated the charges relating to Sept. 9 and Sept. 17," press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference at the State Department today.

"There is a possibility that some inadvertent intrusion of Communist China may have taken place during the breakdown from air engagements over North Viet Nam."

Reams Raps State Policy On Schools

CINCINNATI (AP) — O'Connell's educational policies under Gov. James A. Rhodes are hurting the state's drive to attract industry, Rhodes' Democratic opponent said today.

The Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Frazier Reams Jr., said in a speech prepared for delivery here "the Rhodes administration's industry recruiting program is squarely at odds with its policy of reducing support to education."

Reams said the state has reduced its share of public school financing under Rhodes while it tries to woo new industries. "These two policies are not compatible," he said.

"New plants are attracted to a community that has good schools, libraries, recreation facilities . . . all of which require strong local tax support," Reams continued.

"Reducing state participation in school financing simply forces a greater burden on the local school districts."

He said he would work "to build the best educational system in the nation" if elected governor.

Queen City Teenagers Display Kennedymania

CINCINNATI (AP)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy drew a Beatles-like reaction from hundreds of teen-agers who literally mobbed him in an appearance here.

In all, an estimated 8,000 persons packed an area in the Cincinnati Zoo Sunday where the New York Democrat spoke briefly at a rally for Rep. John J. Gilligan, seeking re-election from the 1st District.

The teen-agers shrieked and shrieked at each quip or joke. They pushed and crowded onto the speaker's platform, seeking to shake his hand or get his autograph.

Apparently mindful that the teen-agers will be of voting age in 1972, Kennedy aimed his remarks at them.

"Congressman Gilligan is going to go back to Congress, and then he's going to lower the voting age to nine," he quipped. He added with a grin that if Robert Taft Jr. is elected, "there will be school all day on Saturday." Taft is Gilligan's opponent.

Such signs as "Kennedy in '68," "Kennedy in '72" and "Return Touch Football to the White House," were dotted throughout the crowd.

$225,000 Suit Filed Here

A $225,000 lawsuit was filed Saturday in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court by a Columbus man.

Named defendants of the suit by Joseph H. Fahy were George W. Van Camp, T. D. Van Camp and Charles Keaton, all of Circleville.

Fahy is seeking the money for alleged negligence on the part of the defendants as the result of a leg injury he received while inspecting a highway resurfacing job on Oct. 7, 1964, on State Route 762.

The plaintiff, an inspector for the State Highway Dept. at the time of the accident, claims T. D. Van Camp was supervisor of the resurfacing project contracted by the senior Van Camp.

Fahy's petition says the rear wheels of a truck ran over his left leg, ankle and foot when it was backing up to a paving machine on the highway. He said the incident occurred while he was checking a stake under the direction of T. D. Van Camp.

The petition claims Fahy has incurred hospital and medical expenses of $10,067.15 since the accident and that he has lost $10,280 in wages as a direct result of the accident.

The Columbus firm of Vorys, Sater, Seymour and Pease represents Fahy in the court action.

$225,000 Suit Filed Here

A $225,000 lawsuit was filed Saturday in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court by a Columbus man.

Named defendants of the suit by Joseph H. Fahy were George W. Van Camp, T. D. Van Camp and Charles Keaton, all of Circleville.

Fahy is seeking the money for alleged negligence on the part of the defendants as the result of a leg injury he received while inspecting a highway resurfacing job on Oct. 7, 1964, on State Route 762.

The plaintiff, an inspector for the State Highway Dept. at the time of the accident, claims T. D. Van Camp was supervisor of the resurfacing project contracted by the senior Van Camp.

Fahy's petition says the rear wheels of a truck ran over his left leg, ankle and foot when it was backing up to a paving machine on the highway. He said the incident occurred while he was checking a stake under the direction of T. D. Van Camp.

The petition claims Fahy has incurred hospital and medical expenses of $10,067.15 since the accident and that he has lost $10,260 in wages as a direct result of the accident.

The Columbus firm of Vorys, Sater, Seymour and Pease represents Fahy in the court action.

Most Argentines Wait-and-See As Latest Military Coup Develops

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — On a Sunday afternoon 90,000 people jammed a soccer stadium to see an important match between two local rivals. Less than a mile away, 56,000 bet 252 million pesos, about $1.2 million, on the day's horse-racing program.

In Cordoba, Argentina's auto-manufacturing center, 1,500 employees of Kaiser Industries consumed a company-subsidized steak-and-vegetable lunch. Each paid the equivalent of 20 cents. This image of good living, of an unburied, uncluttered pace in a comfortable setting, is incapable in Buenos Aires and the country's larger centers.

The last thing Argentines and Argentines evoke is rebellion. They are a peaceful people, highly literate, industrious and probably the best fed on earth. But it's an incongruous image. For 36 years the country has had little political peace.

At the moment, Argentines are caught up in what has been proclaimed as "national revolution" by the nation's armed forces, and as "organized confusion" by some citizens.

It began June 28 when the military overthrew the Arturo Illia government. This was the military's latest incursion into the country's political life. Military leaders have directly or indirectly controlled Argentine governments for 36 years.

The June coup aroused hardly any dissent.

A hopeful wait-and-see attitude still prevails among most Argentines, amid signs of impatience with the groping, slow pace of a revolution that still lacks definite shape and direction.

Under the circumstances, it's difficult to dispel an impression that things may be different this time, that important changes may be in the making.

Since the ouster of dictator Juan D. Peron in September 1955, the military has faced the problem of what to do with his followers. Up to now the solutions have failed to provide an alternative to Peron. Like a nagging cold that won't go away, this remains a nagging nuisance.

Although sympathizers with Peronism represent only an estimated third of the electorate, the opposing majority has failed to come up with a unifying factor to confront the mysticism that keeps Peronists together.

notwithstanding internal fissures.

The military excuse for overthrowing Illia was corruption and inefficiency. The consensus is that the real reason was Peronism. Having seen fresh samples of Peronist strength

Candidate Due At OCSA Event

A legislative panel will be part of the program when the Ohio County Superintendents' Assn. holds its fall workshop Sept. 29-30, at the Lincoln Lodge, Columbus.

Scheduled to participate on the panel will be Myrl Shoemaker, Democratic candidate for the newly created 21st District which includes Pickaway and Ross Counties.

The superintendents' fall workshop will get under way with a 10 a. m. registration on Sept. 29. Regular business sessions will be conducted throughout the two-day meeting.

military leaders are said to have reasoned they might as well move against Peronists ahead of the presidential elections three years hence.

There are rumors that internal dissension is responsible for the turtle pace of the military regime. A bigger reason is believed to be lack of a plan of action, a fault produced by the premature launching of the coup.

The military chief and president is Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Onganía, 52.

The Onganía regime has had to move slowly in part because the path toward solving Argentina's gravest problems seems to lead inevitably to a clash with labor unions. Reorganization of state agencies in order to reduce high operational costs means paring personnel in over-staffed operations such as the national railways where daily losses run to $1 million.

The military governors touched off their most serious opposition to date by suspending university autonomy, features of which gave students a voice in school administrative affairs.

The idea was to root out left-wing extremist agitation.

The result has been some resistance, notably in the interior city of Cordoba, where serious student demonstrations have resulted in repressive measures.

In the past, here and in other Latin-American countries, the experience has been that the use of force by de facto governments has inevitably led to more civilian defiance and violence. The view here is that the military regime will have to resort to force if it intends to remain long in power.

Freedom in Indonesia

Freedom of the press has become a leading subject of debate in Indonesia's capital city, Jakarta. Military authorities in the city insist that censorship of the press is "still needed." One of the leading authors and editors Mochtar Lubis, who was jailed for eight years because he opposed the policies of President Sukarno, speaks out against the suggestion that the government ratify a press restriction bill.

"This will curb even more the freedom of Indonesian newsmen to voice the true and real aspirations of the people," said Lubis, who was released from jail by the new government in May. "The press should be in the hands of the people themselves and not the government."

His words should be pondered by

Gen. Suharto and other leaders of the new regime. The new leaders have won the applause of the West for their actions to mend the harm wrought by President Sukarno. They have made peace with Malaysia, declared themselves ready to cooperate with other Asians to work toward peace.

Even more important than their attitude toward the outside world, however, is their attitude toward their own people. The Indonesians have been suppressed and exploited by one regime after another.

The new government could show its good faith in the Indonesian people, and demonstrate that it is interested in granting true freedom, by giving Indonesians the basic freedom of information through a free press.

Living Cost Woe

Dean Rusk, perturbed by the high cost of living like a cabinet officer, says that when his bank balance reads "zero-zero," he'll have to leave government service.

Considering that the median income for American males in 1964 was $5,587, no cabinet officer is going to get much sympathy from the voter. Government service should not, of course, be the province of rich men.

And even though Congress is unlikely

ly to vote pay increases to men like Mr. Rusk in an election year, there is a way that the secretary might stretch his yearly stipend. He could apply his diplomatic skills in behalf of a cut in the high cost of living.

Any success would naturally be appreciated by the millions in the fixed, lower brackets. They might even vote for congressmen favoring cabinet pay hikes — providing they are noninflationary.

Pressure on Congress

Although the current adjournment date is Oct. 15, allowing a scant three weeks for the congressional elections Nov. 8, it is doubtful whether a lame-duck session of Congress, the first in 16 years, can be avoided.

Chairman Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee, in which tax legislation originates, says he thinks "we're here for the rest of the year," and Senate Majority Leader Mansfield believes "circumstances might force our hands."

At the moment, the circumstances appear so formidable as to make adjournment before the election virtually impossible. Staring Congress in the face are six appropriation bills. Unfinished is a series of President Johnson's Great Society measures.

These and other legislation the White House has been pushing could be held up by the Senate filibuster over the 1966 civil rights bill.

Even if the administration succeeded in breaking the filibuster in the next few weeks — which seems extremely unlikely — there would hardly be time to take care of the legislative logjam.

Still another circumstance working against early adjournment is the continuing uncertainty about Viet Nam. Although the White House insists sufficient funds are available, some members contend Congress should stand by for emergency action.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — The tremendous struggle in the use of credit during the 1960s is being accompanied by a related phenomenon: counseling services that advise or supervise those who can't pay bills.

The reception given a new counseling service there indicates there are a lot of people who thought they were basking in the good life only to have a tidal wave of bills submerge them in debt.

Said William J. Martin Jr.,

President of Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Long Island:

"We haven't publicized the service much, but we have determined there is a definite need. People are banging down the door," those seeking help are "confused, overwhelmed by their position."

Called by various names — debtors anonymous, credit counselors, consumer counselors — they have the same goal:

"To take the avalanche of bills you can't pay, put you on a strict budget and, if necessary, horse-trade your creditors into taking payments in smaller amounts."

Credit counseling services are available in at least 27 states and Ontario, Canada. Soon there may be one in Washington, D.C., and in the near future they are expected to appear in every state where laws permit.

The facts behind the phenomenon are these:

Consumer installment debt has increased from about $48 billion in 1962 to close to $70 billion early this year. Personal bankruptcies, estimated at more than 140,000 a year, have had a similar increase.

Some of this results from illness and acts of God. Much of it, however, represents the proliferation of charge accounts, credit cards, easy terms, and the buy-now-pay-later philosophy.

You may have noticed that the same person who fumbles, hesitates and then decides not

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A FAMOUS trial lawyer in Virginia had just won an acquittal for his client in a scandalous and highly publicized case. An indignant society matron (not above elbowing her way into the courtroom every day of the trial) collared him in the corridor and shrieked, "Is there no case so low, so despicable, so outrageous that you wouldn't take it?" "That remains to be seen," answered the lawyer in equally resonant tones. "What have you been up to, madam?"

Any nominations for the positions still open?

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale bought a snazzy new automobile recently, but ran it right back to the dealer two days later. "What's the matter, Reverend?" twitted the dealer. "Can't you run this delicately tuned car?" Dr. Peale, as always fast on the uptake, answered sharply, "Not and stay in the ministry."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLKMAN, M.D.

What causes the heart to suddenly develop a very rapid beat and cause a fluttering sensation in the chest?

The heart has a remarkable tiny pacemaker which controls and governs the rate of the heartbeat. For a variety of reasons this delicate mechanism can become disturbed and produce the sensation you describe. Drugs, alcohol, tobacco, caffeine and emotional disturbances frequently upset the normal rhythm of the heart.

When these factors are removed this condition, tachycardia, usually disappears. There are some more important and perhaps more serious reasons for the rapid rate. These must of course be carefully determined with the electrocardiograph before any treatment can be advised.

The feeling that the heart is "running away" with itself produces great anxiety which then has a tendency to make it beat even more rapidly.

For the simple rapid tachycardia there are many drugs like quinidine for its control. There are also methods of slowing down the heart rate by gentle pressure on the side of the neck and mild pressure on the eyeballs. Attempts to control it should only be made under the direction of the physician.

What can cause the tube leading from the mouth to the stomach to develop such narrowing that it is almost impossible to swallow?

A narrowing or stricture of the esophagus can be due to a birth deformity, a severe infection, irritation by a foreign body or by the accidental swallowing of some corrosive or caustic household substance. It is almost unbelievable that despite all warnings, accidental swallowing of lye, paint removers, bleaches and other chemicals so often still occurs.

When this happens the thin lining of the esophagus is actually "burnt" by the harsh chemical. This is followed by inflammation and almost immediately by the formation of a tight band of scar tissue.

The complications of this painful and almost disastrous condition should alert everyone that all such preparations must be kept away from the searching hands and mouths of children. There is great danger if these cleansing agents are taken out of their original containers and kept in milk or soft drink bottles. This only invites the accident that produces the closing of the esophagus and years of penalty for carelessness.

What can cause a deficiency of minerals in the body?

Severe under nutrition, some kinds of kidney disease, diabetes and hormone disorders can be responsible for the loss of iron, calcium, phosphorus, sodium and other minerals.

A deficiency of minerals can not be guessed at by people who "just feel they lack sufficient minerals." Chemical studies and X-rays can show the presence or absence of a mineral deficiency. If it is present the minerals can be replaced while the major cause of the condition is being treated.

Pinworm infections occur frequently even in northern climate and in all social classes.

The sun still never sets on Britain's merchant fleet, largest in the world. In 1965 British vessels carried nearly 15 per cent of the world's shipping tonnage.

Well-Managed Country

BANGKOK, Thailand — Said an American with long experience in Thailand: "You must understand that this country has a remarkably able administrative elite." And, so far as the casual visitor on short stay can determine, this is true.

It also stands very much to reason. Thailand has never had a debilitating war, nor a great purge of experienced officials, such as occurred in South Vietnam with the assassination of Diem and his friends. It has never known colonial subservience. Top administrators have invariably had training in the best schools and colleges of England, France or America. For example, Pracha Guna-Kasem, the able and charming director of Information at the Foreign Office, did his post-graduate work in history at Yale, and it was a pleasure to listen to his assessments of teachers such as Professors Harry Rudin (African studies) and Davie Rowe (China) whom I have known for years. The Minister for National Development, Pote Sarasin, who may be the next Prime Minister, was educated at Wilbraham Academy in Western Massachusetts.

Some of the more lugubrious foreign correspondents passing through here have predicted that Thai prosperity must collapse if and when the Americans wind up the war in South Vietnam, and it is undeniable that U. S. money, pouring in to build new airfields and other installations useful in fighting the "quiet war" against the Vietcong from Thai bases, is flushing the local economy.

By John Chamberlain

Yet Pote Sarasin has been presiding over an industrial boom that is a full decade old. Since the demand for Thai products — rice (American), maize, metals, and beautiful Thai silk — must be insatiable in an area that his deficiency of foodstuffs and raw materials, prosperity should survive the Americans' departure. (Unless, of course, the Communists take over, in which case the thirty million Thai people would join the march to the poorhouse that stretches all the way across the north of Eurasia from East Berlin to the China Sea.)

The Thai economy, a "managed" one, has been directed with skill to protect one of the world's hardest currencies, the baht. Bank deposits have practically doubled in three years; the foreign currency reserves are sufficient to support a series of annual unbalanced domestic budgets, thus allowing for interior development; and Dr. Puey Ungpakorn, Governor of the Bank of Thailand, considers that a way has been found to keep the pressures of spending for local industrial expansion and public welfare from exerting a disastrous inflationary force on internal prices. The devices used to keep prices down are (1) to limit the export of rice to what can be spared from domestic consumption of this all-important staple, and (2) to spend the funds represented by the deficit in the State budget on goods from abroad. The argument is that a "deficit," so spent, will not be taken out of the hides of the people by bidding for local goods that they need.

This is fiscal and monetary management of the more hopeful Keynesian brand, made possible because demagogues have not yet arisen in Thailand to demand that the people should get more than the level of the economy can afford. The situation could change, of course, if unrest in the countryside should spread outward from the relatively poverty-stricken Northeast, where the Communists have perhaps prematurely revealed their hand. The casual visitor has no right to pontificate on the future of a countryside which he has not had the opportunity to explore, but it may be worth reporting that old American hands in Bangkok differ on the subject of agrarian unrest in accordance with the routes which they took to get to Bangkok in the first place. Those coming direct from the United States tend to see only the poverty of peasants who live in weather-beaten houses erected on stilts in swampy country, and who labor patiently behind their water buffalo in plowing and planting the rice paddies. Those coming here by way of a sojourn spent amid the squalor of India speak of the Thai peasant as being one of the most fortunate in Asia.

Everything, in short, is relative. But if the U.S. weakens its resolve to keep the Communist poorhouse from spreading, it won't make much difference whether a country is starving like India or smiling like Thailand.

591 Phone Calls a Year Is Par

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you don't make 591 phone calls a year, you're below the American average.

You probably learned in high school that U.S. Grant, Civil War hero, was more than a bit fond of bourbon whisky. But do you know the favorite drink of his chief rival, Robert E. Lee? Well, on or off the battlefield, Gen. Lee generally preferred buttermilk.

Psychiatrists say that daydreamers tend to be sensitive, nervous and perceptive. But when I was a boy, Pappy just told me I was lazy.

Gout afflicts between 500,000 and a million Americans, and physicians still aren't sure why this painful affliction strikes most often in the big toe. They believe it is because this toe suffers more wear and tear in walking or running.

Here's a fact of life which we've decided to put far down on our list of things to brood about: Since a fly's longevity span is only 60 days, it's middle-aged in a month.

The United States boasts more Nobel Prize winners than any other nation.

Quotable notables: "Lying in bed would be an altogether perfect and supreme experience if only one had a colored pencil long enough to draw on the ceiling" — G.K. Chesterton.

Fickle femmes: Veteran cops say most lady shoplifters don't steal from actual need but to better their standard of living. They steal most often beauty aids, stockings, cigarettes, candy and meats.

Macabre warning: Highway accidents have become so commonplace that some doctors advise it's a good idea to have your dentist make a mold of your teeth and jaws. Then you can get a better restoration job if your face is smashed in a wreck.

If you hate your first name, it may be a sign that you hate yourself, too. A study by Columbia University found that persons who felt their names fitted their personality tended to have a higher self-esteem; those who disliked their names often were also dissatisfied with themselves.

Worth remembering: "It's the little things that annoy us most; we can sit on a mountain but not on a tack."

It was William Mizner who observed, "We all have something to fall back on, and I never knew a phony who didn't land on it eventually."

Your Health Through Chiropractic

HELP NATURE GET YOU WELL!

DR. HERMAN H. SHUTTLEWORTH
Chiropractor

"Mother Nature" is infinite — without limit! No wonder doctors often advise patients to get plenty of rest, follow a proper diet, and "Nature" may eventually get them well.

T. B. patients are confined to complete bed rest for periods of a year or longer to permit Nature to repair the damaged lungs.

Asthmatic patients frequently are told they may "outgrow" it in time — Nature "might" heal it.

Heart patients are sentenced to months of convalescence to allow Nature to "strengthen" and "heal" the heart muscles.

The surgeon sutures the wound or sets the fracture and leaves the "healing" to a "greater force" — Nature.

Who is Nature anyway? We find that while patients have been given this wonderful ray of hope and faith in Nature, they are never told who or what Nature is!

Webster describes "Nature" as, "Sum total of all things in time and space; the entire physical universe; the vital functions, the forces, and activities of the organs. The Power, Force, principle, etc., that seems to regulate this."

Nature is that Innate Intelligent Power of Force that fashioned our physical body in the beginning. But Mother Nature doesn't stop there — She maintains life in our body until death.

She assigned every organ to the economy of the body. The mouth is designed to break down foods — the stomach mixes and digests the food — the intestines assimilate and absorb micronutrients — the colon absorbs liquids and eliminates wastes. It's the heart's job to circulate the blood — the liver to filter the blood, store energy foods and make digestive juices — the kidneys' job is to void unwanted fluids and impurities, etc. All of these functions are muscular activity! All muscular activity requires energy — Life energy! No energy — no muscular function!

Nature destined the brain to supply this vital Life energy — and co-ordinates all these functions. The brain controls and transmits its energy through its connecting nerve lines to every crook and cranny of the body — to every cell, muscle, and organ.

Webster describes "health" as, "A sound physical condition." All body functions will be "sound" or, "normal" so long as Nature's Life-energy current can flow freely through her nerve system. It stands to reason that sickness can result from interference with normal flow of life-energy through the nerve network.

It follows that in the event of an injury or sickness, to the degree that Nature's transmission lines can be restored — to that degree, health or sound physical function can be restored.

Chiropractors have bulging files of cases of all sorts of ailments that got well because we were able to restore nerve lines permitting Nature to employ full use of all Her reparative forces.

At fault for the prevalence of this attitude are those who dispense credit. Admittedly, they have emphasized the ease and not the pain.

Any community can begin a credit counseling service if its merchants, doctors, lawyers, loan officials and bankers want one and are willing to pay the administrative costs. One procedure is to write the National Foundation For Consumer Credit, 1411 K Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

A FAMOUS trial lawyer in Virginia had just won an acquittal for his client in a scandalous and highly publicized case. An indignant society matron (not above elbowing her way into the courtroom every day of the trial) collared him in the corridor and shrieked, "Is there no case so low, so despicable, so outrageous that you wouldn't take it?" "That remains to be seen," answered the lawyer in equally resonant tones. "What have you been up to, madam?"

A Santa Monica sports fan is working on a new kind of all-star baseball team—just what kind you'll be able to figure out for yourself when you hear his first six nominations: Tenor from the Mets; Holey from the Red Sox; Scapled from the Indians; Chicken from the Braves; Fallen from the Angels, and Loot from the Pirates. Any nominations for the positions still open?

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale bought a snazzy new automobile recently, but ran it right back to the dealer two days later. "What's the matter, Reverend?" twitted the dealer. "Can't you run this delicately tuned car?" Dr. Peale, as always fast on the uptake, answered sharply, "Not and stay in the ministry."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

What causes the heart to suddenly develop a very rapid beat and cause a fluttering sensation in the chest?

The heart has a remarkable tiny pacemaker which controls and governs the rate of the heartbeat. For a variety of reasons this delicate mechanism can become disturbed and produce the sensation you describe. Drugs, alcohol, tobacco, caffeine and emotional disturbances frequently upset the normal rhythm of the heart.

When these factors are removed this condition, tachycardia, usually disappears. There are some more important and perhaps more serious reasons for the rapid rate. These must of course be carefully determined with the electrocardiograph before any treatment can be advised.

The feeling that the heart is "running away" with itself produces great anxiety which then has a tendency to make it beat even more rapidly.

For the simple rapid tachycardia there are many drugs like quinidine for its control. There are also methods of slowing down the heart rate by gentle pressure on the side of the neck and mild pressure on the eyeballs. Attempts to control it should only be made under the direction of the physician.

What can cause the tube leading from the mouth to the stomach to develop such narrowing that it is almost impossible to swallow?

A narrowing or stricture of the esophagus can be due to a birth deformity, a severe infection, irritation by a foreign body or by the accidental swallowing of some corrosive or caustic household substance. It is almost unbelievable that despite all warnings, accidental swallowing of lye, paint removers, bleaches and other chemicals so often still occurs.

When this happens the thin lining of the esophagus is actually "burnt" by the harsh chemical. This is followed by inflammation and almost immediately by the formation of a tight band of scar tissue.

The complications of this painful and almost disastrous condition should alert everyone that all such preparations must be kept away from the searching hands and mouths of children. There is great danger if these cleansing agents are taken out of their original con-

Well-Managed Country

By John Chamberlain

BANGKOK, Thailand — Said an American with long experience in Thailand: "You must understand that this country has a remarkably able administrative elite." And, so far as the casual visitor on short stay can determine, this is true.

It so stands very much to reason. Thailand has never had a debilitating war, nor a great purge of experienced officials, such as occurred in South Vietnam with the assassination of Diem and his friends. It has never known colonial subservience. Top administrators have invariably had training in the best schools and colleges of England, France or America. For example, Pracha Guna-Kasem, the able and charming director of Information at the Foreign Office, did his post-graduate work in history at Yale, and it was a pleasure to listen to his assessments of teachers such as Professors Harry Rudin (African studies) and Davie Rowe (China) whom I have known for years. The Minister for National Development, Pote Sarasin, who may be the next Prime Minister, was educated at Wilbraham Academy in Western Massachusetts.

Some of the more lugubrious foreign correspondents passing through here have predicted that Thai prosperity must collapse if and when the Americans wind up the war in South Vietnam, and it is undeniable that U.S. money, pouring in to build new airfields and other installations useful in fighting the "quiet war" against the Vietcong from Thai bases, is flushing the local economy.

Yet Pote Sarasin has been presiding over an industrial boom that is a full decade old. Since the demand for Thai products — rice (American), maize, metals, and beautiful Thai silk — must be insatiable in an area that his deficiency of foodstuffs and raw materials, prosperity should survive the Americans' departure. (Unless, of course, the Communists take over, in which case the thirty million Thai people would join the march to the poorhouse that stretches all the way across the north of Eurasia from East Berlin to the China Sea.)

The Thai economy, a "managed" one, has been directed with skill to protect one of the world's hardest currencies, the baht. Bank deposits have practically doubled in three years; the foreign currency reserves are sufficient to support a series of annual unbalanced domestic budgets, thus allowing for interior development; and Dr. Puey Ungpakorn, Governor of the Bank of Thailand, considers that a way has been found to keep the pressures of spending for local industrial expansion and public welfare from exerting a disastrous inflationary force on internal prices. The devices used to keep prices down are (1) to limit the export of rice to what can be spared from domestic consumption of this all-important staple, and (2) to spend the funds represented by the deficit in the State budget on goods from abroad. The argument is that a "deficit", so spent, will not be taken out of the hides of the people by bidding for local goods that they need.

This is fiscal and monetary management of the more hopeful Keynesian brand, made possible because demagogues have not yet arisen in Thailand to demand that the people should get more than the level of the economy can afford. The situation could change, of course, if unrest in the countryside should spread outward from the relatively poverty-stricken Northeast, where the Communists have perhaps prematurely revealed their hand. The casual visitor has no right to pontificate on the future of a country-side which he has not had the opportunity to explore, but it may be worth reporting that old American hands in Bangkok differ on the subject of agrarian unrest in accordance with the routes which they took to get to Bangkok in the first place. Those coming direct from the United States tend to see only the poverty of peasants who live in weather-beaten houses erected on stilts in swampy country, and who labor patiently behind their water buffalo in plowing and planting the rice paddies. Those coming here by way of a sojourn spent amid the squalor of India speak of the Thai peasant as being one of the most fortunate in Asia.

Everything, in short, is relative. But if the U.S. weakens its resolve to keep the Communist poorhouse from spreading, it won't make much difference whether a country is starving like India or smiling like Thailand.

591 Phone Calls a Year Is Par

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you don't make 591 phone calls a year, you're below the American average.

You probably learned in high school that U.S. Grant, Civil War hero, was more than a bit fond of bourbon whisky. But do you know the favorite drink of his chief rival, Robert E. Lee? Well, on or off the battlefield, Gen. Lee generally preferred buttermilk.

Psychiatrists say that daydreamers tend to be sensitive, nervous and perceptive. But when I was a boy, Pappy just told me I was lazy.

Gout afflicts between 500,000 and a million Americans, and physicians still aren't sure why this painful affliction strikes most often in the big toe. They believe it is because this toe suffers more wear and tear in walking or running.

Here's a fact of life which we've decided to put far down on our list of things to brood about: Since a fly's longevity-span is only 60 days, it's middle-aged in a month.

Quotable notables: "Lying in bed would be an altogether perfect and supreme experience if only one had a colored pencil long enough to draw on the ceiling." — G.K. Chesterton.

Fickle femmes: Veteran cops say most lady shoppers don't steal from actual need but to better their standard of living. They steal most often beauty aids, stockings, cigarettes, candy and meats.

Macabre warning: Highway accidents have become so commonplace that some doctors advise it's a good idea to have your dentist make a mold of your teeth and jaws. Then you can get a better restoration job if your face is smashed in a wreck.

If you hate your first name, it may be a sign that you hate yourself, too. A study by Colum-

Your Health Through Chiropractic

HELP NATURE GET YOU WELL!

DR. HERMAN H. SHUTTLEWORTH

Chiropractor

"Mother Nature" is infinite — without limit! No wonder doctors often advise patients to get plenty of rest, follow a proper diet, and "Nature" may eventually get them well.

T. B. patients are confined to complete bed rest for periods of a year or longer to permit Nature to repair the damaged lungs.

Asthmatic patients frequently are told they may "outgrow" it in time — Nature "might" heal it.

Heart patients are sentenced to months of convalescence to allow Nature to "strengthen" and "heal" the heart muscles.

The surgeon sutures the wound or sets the fracture and leaves the "healing" to a "greater force" — Nature.

Who is Nature anyway? We find that while patients have been given this wonderful ray of hope and faith in Nature, they are never told who or what Nature is!

Webster describes "Nature" as, "Sum total of all things in time and space; the entire physical universe; the vital functions, the forces, and activities of the organs. The Power, Force, principle, etc., that seems to regulate this."

Nature is that Innate Intelligent Power of Force that fashioned our physical body in the beginning. But Mother Nature doesn't stop there — She maintains life in our body until death.

She assigned every organ to the economy of the body. The mouth is designed to break down foods — the stomach mixes and digests the food — the intestines assimilate and absorb micronutrients — the colon absorbs liquids and eliminates wastes. It's the heart's job to circulate the blood — the liver to filter the blood, store energy foods and make digestive juices — the kidneys' job is to void unwanted fluids and impurities, etc. All of these functions are muscular activity! All muscular activity requires energy — Life energy! No energy — no muscular function!

Nature destined the brain to supply this vital Life energy — and co-ordinates all these functions. The brain controls and transmits its energy through its connecting nerve lines to every crook and cranny of the body — to every cell, muscle, and organ.

Webster describes "health" as, "A sound physical condition." All body functions will be "sound" or, "normal" so long as Nature's Life-energy current can flow freely through her nerve system. It stands to reason that sickness can result from interference with normal flow of life-energy through the nerve network.

It follows that in the event of an injury or sickness, to the degree that Nature's transmission lines can be restored — to that degree, health or sound physical function can be restored.

Chiropractors have bulging files of cases of all sorts of ailments that got well because we were able to restore nerve lines permitting Nature to employ full use of all Her reparative forces.

Ohio School Bus Situation Can Be Frightening

By STEPHEN MILLER
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The familiar yellow school bus is a frightening thing to Hanford L. Combs, who watches over some 10,000 of the vehicles as Ohio's chief of pupil transportation.

It isn't just that there are too few buses, that bus buying has been a political battle for more than two years, or that Ohio's new fair bus law added some 120,000 private and parochial school students to the state bus load this year.

The problem, says Combs, is that the average Ohio school bus is more than eight years old — too old to be safe.

"When I think of all the new pressures being put on the system, frankly, I'm scared," Combs says.

Public schools operated 9,322 buses last year. These buses and more than 1,000 operated by parochial and private schools were all inspected by state patrolmen before being put into service.

"They pass the inspection all right," Combs says, "but then they go out and break down and have other problems. I think we're operating with unsafe equipment."

The 1,318 buses bought wholly or in part by state funds this year represented a net gain of only about 422, since Combs says 596 replaced vehicles more than eight years old.

A total of 1,228 bus purchases were approved under an emergency enactment of the state's embattled central bidding plan. State officials generally considered the action an awesome transaction, but Combs says the performance should be repeated.

Only if 1,200 to 1,400 new buses are bought each year for the next five years Combs says, can the average bus age be brought below eight years.

And that won't be good enough, Combs says.

"When your buses are four or five years old, that's a good system," he says. "But when you have buses 20 years old, that's not good."

Combs is counting on some form of centralized state bus plan for help, although the centralization battle has raged for more than two years already has earned him four subpoenas as a witness.

Two years ago, the General Assembly set up a $5 million bus purchase subsidy fund and told school districts they could buy vehicles by themselves or purchase plan state school officials set up.

The first plan set up was, in fact, a centralized purchasing plan. Bus body distributors who said centralization would give the market to a single firm, filed suit and the plan was declared unconstitutional.

The decision was appealed and is still pending, but school officials devised another plan which called for centralized bidding to establish a state ceiling price which local districts could use to make the actual purchases.

The second plan was put into effect for 60 days this summer by an emergency decree from Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Using subsidy funds and money transfers within the education department, the state spent $6,512,683.25 in less than three weeks while racing to beat the decree deadline.

More than $4 million went for full subsidies for 619 parochial and private school buses needed under the fair bus law. If the massive bus orders were repeated for the next five years, the price tag would probably shrink as public schools, which get lower subsidies, bought more buses.

Combs figures that school districts sing cooperative bidding prices could save $1.8 million to $2.4 million a year, but he still favors centralized purchasing.

In the next few weeks, Combs says, his office will ask the state School Board's legislative committee to consider asking the General Assembly for a law which would specifically permit centralized purchases.

Combs admits it might be unfair to give all buses to one bidder; bidders are usually in the business only as a sideline and that the price discrepancies which have existed between school districts and between Ohio and states with centralized purchasing plans aren't fair either.

Combs indicates local school districts should be relieved of as much of the bus cost burden as possible, allowing them to "You can't spend all that money on transportation, spend the money on education (transportation) money without hurting your education program," he says. "and tax dollars are hard to come by."

Uncle Sam Is Big Backer Of Drama-in-Education

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest theatrical angel this season isn't on Broadway — but in Washington. He is Uncle Sam, backing with a million dollars a multipurpose test of drama-in-education.

Directly involved in the new federal government venture are 76,000 high school pupils in Rhode Island and Louisiana. The potential values are far-reaching, from teaching reform to growth of professional regional acting troupes.

Taking part, in a rare display of agency togetherness, are the National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities, the U.S. Office of Education, state and local boards of education.

"We want to see if the whole idea makes sense," says Roger L. Stevens, chief arts consultant to President Johnson.

As Steven backgrounds the undertaking, the National Endowment about a year ago envisaged exposing teen-agers to performances by first class theatrical companies, thereby hopefully creating a future audience.

And mightn't performed dramas stimulate interest in such other subjects as history, languages and the graphic arts? The consultants agreed a scientific appraisal of such facets would be helpful.

There was a wide range search and inquiry among school boards across the country to find the right combination of conditions to get pilot programs launched.

As things worked out, an even greater degree of experimental flexibility than was anticipated is on tap.

The Rhode Island enterprise was nicknamed "Project Discovery" — is being conducted on a statewide bases for the 40,000 second, third and fourth year students in all public parochial and private high schools. The performing company is the Trinity Square Repertory at Providence, a group in existence for three years.

The Louisiana undertaking concerns 36,000 pupils in New Orleans and suburban Jefferson Parish. To put on the shows a new troupe is being set up under the name Repertory Theater, New Orleans.

Each of the ventures has received $165,000 from the National Endowment for preproduction costs — assembling and rehearsing casts, costuming and similar expenses. Rhode Island company gets $346,000 from the Office of Education for putting on 40 performances of each of four plays in the 1,000-seat Providence School of Design auditorium. The New Orleans group gets $11,000 weekly for providing the necessary number of performances of four plays in the 1,500-seat Civic Theater which has been taken over.

The government agencies hope to support the programs for three years. The Providence display starts Oct. 4 with Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," which will be followed by O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness," Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and Chekhov's "The Three Sisters."

For New Orleans, which gets under way in mid-November, Vaughan has selected the old English farce, "Charley's Aunt," Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," Wilder's "Our Town" and Sheridan's "The Rivals."

Both army strong man Gen. Suharto and Foreign Minister Adam Malik have asked Sukarno to leave the country but he repeatedly has refused, reliable sources say.

This week the defiant Sukarno declared he is a Marxist — but not a Communist Marxist. He again challenged his critics to prove he had not been loyal to the Indonesian revolution, which has its basis in anti-imperialism.

the driving force here in keeping Sukarno in check. Associates call him the only one who has the courage to say what he thinks in Sukarno's presence.

Malik also is instrumental in guiding Gen. Suharto through the intricacies of keeping an outward show of governmental legality while continuing the internal moves to oust Sukarno.

Ohio School Bus Situation Can Be Frightening

By STEPHEN MILLER
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The familiar yellow school bus is frightening thing to Hanford L. Combs, who watches over some 10,000 of the vehicles as Ohio's chief of pupil transportation.

It isn't just that there are too few buses, that bus buying has been a political battle for more than two years, or that Ohio's new fair bus law added some 120,000 private and parochial school students to the state bus load this year.

The problem, says Combs, is that the average Ohio school bus is more than eight years old — too old to be safe.

"When I think of all the new pressures being put on the system, frankly, I'm scared," Combs says.

Public schools operated 9,322 buses last year. These buses and more than 1,000 operated by parochial and private schools were all inspected by state patrolmen before being put into service.

"They pass the inspection all right," Combs says, "but then they go out and break down and have other problems. I think we're operating with unsafe equipment."

The 1,318 buses bought wholly or in part by state funds this year represented a net gain of only about 422, since Combs says 596 replaced vehicles more than eight years old.

A total of 1,228 bus purchases were approved under an emergency enactment of the state's embattled central bidding plan. State officials generally considered the action an awesome transaction, but Combs says the performance should be repeated.

Only if 1,200 to 1,400 new buses are bought each year for the next five years Combs says, can the average bus age be brought below eight years.

And that won't be good enough, Combs says.

"When your buses are four or five years old, that's a good system," he says. "But when you have buses 20 years old, that's not good."

Combs is counting on some form of centralized state bus plan for help, although the centralization battle has raged for more than two years already has earned him four subpoenas as a witness.

Two years ago, the General Assembly set up a $5 million bus purchase subsidy fund and told school districts they could buy vehicles by themselves or purchase plan state school officials set up.

The first plan set up was, in fact, a centralized purchasing plan. Bus body distributors who said centralization would give the market to a single firm, filed suit and the plan was declared unconstitutional.

The decision was appealed and is still pending, but school officials devised another plan which called for centralized bidding to establish a state ceiling price which local districts could use to make the actual purchases.

The second plan was put into effect for 60 days this summer by an emergency decree from Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Using subsidy funds and money transfers within the education department, the state spent $6,512,683.25 in less than three weeks while racing to beat the decree deadline.

More than $4 million went for full subsidies for 619 parochial and private school buses needed under the fair bus law. If the massive bus orders were repeated for the next five years, the price tag would probably shrink as public schools, which get lower subsidies, bought more buses.

Combs figures that school districts sing cooperative bidding prices could save $1.8 million to $2.4 million a year, but he still favors centralized purchasing.

In the next few weeks, Combs says, his office will ask the state School Board's legislative committee to consider asking the General Assembly for a law which would specifically permit centralized purchases.

Combs admits it might be unfair to give all buses to one bidder as usual in the business only as a sideline and that the price discrepancies which have existed between school districts and between Ohio and states with centralized purchasing plans aren't fair either.

Combs indicates local school districts should be relieved of as much of the bus cost burden as possible, allowing them to "You can't spend all that money on transportation. Spend the money on education (transportation) money without hurting your education program," he says. "and tax dollars are hard to come by."

Tax Bill Effect On Steel Eyed

CLEVELAND (AP) — Steel magazine said today forms of steel now in strongest demand would be hardest hit if Congress follows President Johnson's recommendation to suspend the 7 per cent investment tax credit and certain accelerated depreciation allowances.

"A suspension, even if voted soon by Congress, would have little effect on steel production and shipments this year," the magazine said. But "effects of the suspension would become increasingly pronounced as the months passed by in 1967." The President's recommendation was for suspension to Jan. 1, 1968.

The "vulnerable" products—structural shapes, plates, bars (including reinforcing bars) and railroad items — accounted for 34.8 per cent of all steel shipped by United States mills the first seven months of this year, the metalworking weekly said.

The magazine further predicted the action, if approved, would be a second blow to modernization of the nation's productive capacity. The first, Steel said, was recent interest rate increases and tightening of the money supply.

"All other forms of steel would be hurt . . . but damage won't be limited to steel products. Even more devastating will be the effects upon the steel users, particularly the capital goods producers," Steel said.

Steel production continues at a high rate, the current up-trend pushed the output of ingots and castings to an estimated 2.64 million tons last week, the magazine said. This is 25,000 tons above the previous week.

Ingot production for the year to date continues to gain on that of a year ago, Steel reported. Totals through Sept. 10 were about 93.69 million tons or 3.3 per cent behind last year's 96.86 million tons to Sept. 10.

Steel's price composite on number one heavy melting scrap held steady this week at $28.83 a gross ton.

Uncle Sam Is Big Backer Of Drama-in-Education

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest theatrical angel this season isn't on Broadway — but in Washington. He is Uncle Sam, backing with a million dollars a multipurpose test of drama-in-education.

Directly involved in the new federal government venture are 76,000 high school pupils in 76,000 high school pupils in Rhode Island and Louisiana. The potential values are far-reaching, from teaching reform to growth of professional regional acting troupes.

Taking part, in a rare display of agency togetherness, are the National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities, the U.S. Office of Education, state and local boards of education.

"We want to see if the whole idea makes sense," says Roger L. Stevens, chief arts consultant to President Johnson.

As Steven backgrounds the undertaking, the National Endowment about a year ago envisaged exposing teen-agers to performances by first class theatrical companies, thereby hopefully creating a future audience.

And mightn't performed dramas stimulate interest in such other subjects as history, languages and the graphic arts? The consultants agreed a scientific appraisal of such facets would be helpful.

There was a wide range search and inquiry among school boards across the country to find the right combination of conditions to get pilot programs launched.

As things worked out, an even greater degree of experimental flexibility than was anticipated is on tap.

The Rhode Island enterprise was nicknamed "Project Discovery" — is being conducted on a statewide bases for the 40,000 second, third and fourth year students in all public parochial and private high schools. The performing company is the Trinity Square Repertory at Providence, a group in existence for three years.

The Louisiana undertaking concerns 36,000 pupils in New Orleans and suburban Jefferson Parish. To put on the shows a new troupe is being set up under the name Repertory Theater, New Orleans.

Each of the ventures has received $165,000 from the National Endowment for preproduction costs — assembling and

Cigarette Smoking Tied to Emphysema

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The Rhode Island Medical Journal reports that study in three Rhode Island hospitals indicates that a major cause of the lung disease emphysema is "the habitual inhalation of cigarette smoke."

The study said 176 of 306 patients examined smoked a pack of cigarettes or more a day.

Don't Count Sukarno Out Just Yet

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Don't count Sukarno out yet.

That's the advice of several diplomats and some Indonesian political sources, almost a year after the military clipped the Indonesian president's powers.

Most of these people think Sukarno is fighting a losing battle in his struggle to keep control, but they warn the game still is not over.

Both army strong man Gen. Suharto and Foreign Minister Adam Malik have asked Sukarno to leave the country but he repeatedly has refused, reliable sources say.

The 65-year-old president, in the privacy of palace dinners, still exudes confidence and determination to head this nation of 109 million.

Student leaders say they soon will begin massive demonstrations in an attempt to drive Sukarno out of the country.

This week the defiant Sukarno declared he is a Marxist — but not a Communist Marxist. He again challenged his critics to prove he had not been loyal to the Indonesian revolution, which has its basis in anti-imperialism.

At a recent dinner in the palace, Sukarno told his guests

he knew forces in Indonesia were attempting to oust him.

"They can assassinate me, they can kill me, but they will not topple me," he declared.

Some diplomats question the wisdom of letting Foreign Minister Malik be out of the country at this critical stage in the power game. He is en route to the United States where he may lead Indonesia back into the United Nations next week.

Malik is generally considered

the driving force here in keeping Sukarno in check. Associates call him the only one who has the courage to say what he thinks in Sukarno's presence.

Malik also is instrumental in guiding Gen. Suharto through the intricacies of keeping an outward show of governmental legality while continuing the internal moves to oust Sukarno. Without Malik here, some fear, the more experienced Sukarno may move too fast for Suharto and trip him up with political maneuvers.

The anti-Sukarno students have told Gen. Suharto that if he does not take care of Sukarno in one way or another, they will, authoritative sources say.

But many observers believe open removal of Sukarno at this stage would trigger civil war. It looks as if Suharto is playing the waiting game, hoping to break down Sukarno's image in the public eye before forcing him out.

Mailboxes Look New With Painting

By ELEANOR ROSS

How does the mailbox at your house rate in appearance? Is it as bright and in as tip-top shape as the rest of the place?

Actually, it doesn't require a lot of work to keep your mailbox from looking decrepit.

If the mailbox is properly installed and finished it should withstand any kind of weather condition — short of hurricanes, tornadoes and floods — and still retain its original appearance.

Mailboxes made of various metals — galvanized iron, tin and steel — may all rust if they are not adequately protected against moisture. Aluminum will not rust but will get pitted. Wood that is not fully protected against the weather can rot away. And then what becomes of the mail?

Repainting your mailbox does not begin with the painting. It starts with the proper preparation of surfaces. The final result can only be as good as its foundation. The surfaces on which the new paint is to be applied must be sound, smooth, dry, and — if of metal — rust-free. All loose dust must be removed, and all rust on metal surfaces should be completely eliminated with the aid of a wire brush and steel wool.

Thoroughly remove any loose peeling or blistering paint, and smooth out rough edges with sandpaper. Spot cover all bare surfaces with a wood or metal primer to prevent the entrance of moisture, and, in the case of metal, to stop further rusting. Outside house primer or enamel undercoating should be used on wood, while metallic zinc or aluminum paints are very satisfactory for metal surfaces.

For a transparent, weather-resistant coating on your mailbox, use spar varnish.

On metal and wooden mailboxes nearly any exterior paint or enamel will give a satisfactory finish coat. For adequate moisture resistance, at least two finish coats are necessary to insure that all gaps, brushmarks, and other weak points are covered.

Aluminum paints are often used for the finish coat on metals because of their high resistance to moisture. If a bright mailbox is what you want, then a sturdy, colorful, exterior enamel is your best bet.

If you have a mailbox post, there are wood preservatives available which retard the rotting of wood that is below the ground. Regular house paint or trim-and-trellis paint may be used for the finish coat.

When choosing a color for your mailbox, remember that it should blend harmoniously with the overall color scheme of your home and its natural setting.

With all this done, now you're ready to add those personal, individual touches. For instance, you can spray paint the family name and house number on the box with the aid of stencils. The completed job should

Wives of Top Executives Far Wealthier than Mates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The wives of some American business executives are far more prosperous than their husbands, at least as far as stock ownership in their husbands' companies is concerned.

Documents in the files of the Securities and Exchange Commission showed today that the holdings of some wives are as much as 50 times greater than those of their executive husbands. In some cases the percentage is even higher.

The documents were filed as a result of a new commission ruling requiring businessmen to report major stock held in their companies by their wives and minor children.

The ruling is in line with commission policy for fuller disclosure of the ownership of corporations selling securities to the public.

Existing law requires directors or officers of a company to report to the SEC the amount of stock owned beneficially either directly or indirectly. Because of some confusion over the meaning of beneficial ownership, the commission earlier this year said that generally speaking a person is regarded as a beneficial owner of securities if the stocks are held in the name of a spouse or minor children.

It said reports, proxy solicitations, registration statements and other materials filed after May 1 should reflect the new definition of beneficial ownership.

One filing since then showed that the wife of a Texaco, Inc., director owns 1,464,510 common shares of the company's stock. The records disclose her husband, Lester J. Norris, owns 116,680 shares with another 118,595 shares owned through a trust or holding company.

Another filing showed that the family of G.W. Humphrey, board chairman of the M.A. Hanna Co., owns 206,542 shares of the firm's stock. Humphrey, however, owns 32,000 shares plus another 225,660 shares through trusts the records showed.

Howard Hall, a director of the Quaker Oats Co., previously had reported holdings of 110 shares in the company. SEC records showed his wife owns 22,245 shares.

Mailboxes Look New With Painting

By ELEANOR ROSS

How does the mailbox at your house rate in appearance? Is it as bright and in as tip-top shape as the rest of the place?

Actually, it doesn't require a lot of work to keep your mailbox from looking decrepit.

If the mailbox is properly installed and finished it should withstand any kind of weather condition — short of hurricanes, tornadoes and floods — and still retain its original appearance.

Mailboxes made of various metals — galvanized iron, tin and steel — may all rust if they are not adequately protected against moisture. Aluminum will not rust but will get pitted. Wood that is not fully protected against the weather can rot away. And then what becomes of the mail?

Repainting your mailbox does not begin with the painting. It starts with the proper preparation of surfaces. The final result can only be as good as its foundation. The surfaces on which the new paint is to be applied must be sound, smooth, dry, and — if of metal — rust-free. All loose dust must be removed, and all rust on metal surfaces should be completely eliminated with the aid of a wire brush and steel wool.

Thoroughly remove any loose peeling or blistering paint, and smooth out rough edges with sandpaper. Spot cover all bare surfaces with a wood or metal primer to prevent the entrance of moisture, and, in the case of metal, to stop further rusting. Outside house primer or enamel undercoating should be used on wood, while metallic zinc or aluminum paints are very satisfactory for metal surfaces.

For a transparent, weather-resistant coating on your mailbox, use spar varnish.

On metal and wooden mailboxes nearly any exterior paint or enamel will give a satisfactory finish coat. For adequate moisture resistance, at least two finish coats are necessary to insure that all gaps, brushmarks, and other weak points are covered.

Aluminum paints are often used for the finish coat on metals because of their high resistance to moisture. If a bright mailbox is what you want, then a sturdy, colorful, exterior enamel is your best bet.

If you have a mailbox post, there are wood preservatives available which retard the rotting of wood that is below the ground. Regular house paint or trim-and-trellis paint may be used for the finish coat.

When choosing a color for your mailbox, remember that it should blend harmoniously with the overall color scheme of your home and its natural setting.

With all this done, now you're ready to add those personal, individual touches. For instance, you can spray paint the family name and house number on the box with the aid of stencils.

The completed job should

Wives of Top Executives Far Wealthier than Mates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The wives of some American business executives are far more prosperous than their husbands, at least as far as stock ownership in their husbands' companies is concerned.

Documents in the files of the Securities and Exchange Commission showed today that the holdings of some wives are as much as 50 times greater than those of their executive husbands. In some cases the percentage is even higher.

The documents were filed as a result of a new commission ruling requiring businessmen to report major stock held in their companies by their wives and minor children.

The ruling is in line with commission policy for fuller disclosure of the ownership of corporations selling securities to the public.

Existing law requires directors or officers of a company to report to the SEC the amount of stock owned beneficially.

Pumpkin Show Data, School Request on Society Agenda

A program on the Pumpkin Show and a move to support a petition requesting Circleville Junior High School be changed to Everts Junior High School highlighted a regular meeting of the Pickaway County Historical Society at the St. Philip's Church Parish House.

The Pumpkin Show run-down was offered by Charles Will. Support of the junior high school designation was in response to a petition authored by Harold Grant for presentation to the Circleville Board of Education.

It was noted that Mr. Ebenezer Everts donated seven lots to the city where the building now stands. The original high school on the site was named for Mr. Everts, but the name was dropped when the present building was erected.

Introduced by Mrs. William Huber, program chairman, Will told how the Pumpkin Show originated in 1904 as a one-day exhibit of farm products, culinary skills and athletic prowess. By the 1940's it had become a four-day festival known throughout the land.

The Circleville Herald in 1904 said, "The first show demonstrated that if any county in the state ought to have and could have a first class county fair, it is Pickaway. The crowd in attendance was large, there being as many people in town as were here Saturday, October 14, 1904, when Pawnee Bill's Wild West Show gave an exhibition at the fairgrounds."

THE SHOW continued to expand and prosper until 1910 when Circleville planned to mark the city's centennial and to hold this celebration in connection with the Pumpkin Show. Plans for the centennial observation were initiated by the Monday Club.

Among the distinguished speakers were Col. Groce, T. D. Harmon, Col. William Leiby of Lancaster, Gov. Judson Harmon, and gubernatorial candidate Warren G. Harding.

A GAR campfire, a sacred concert, Caleb Atwater Day, a school parade and on Wednesday evening grand illuminations fireworks and pyrotechnics galore were all part of the celebration.

Monday Club's efforts were rewarded when its float won first prize. The float, representing arts and sciences, was adorned with white chrysanthemums and palms. A number of young ladies rode dressed in Grecian costumes, posing as allegorical figures.

The 1917 show featured a merry-go-round at the court house corner, Filipino midgets, a six-legged, two-headed calf and Spider Girl.

At the 25th anniversary of the Pumpkin Show there were 2 merry-go-rounds two ferris wheels, a whip, a merry mix-up and an airplane.

In 1933, Lucille Heise won the first Miss Pumpkin Show contest.

ONE OF the highlights of the 1938 season was the Saddle Horse competition held under lights at Mason Field on N. Court St.

In 1948 pumpkin soup and pumpkin jack were introduced. Beverly Huston was Miss Pumpkin Show, Sandy Bozman of Ashville was Little Miss Pumpkin Show with Phyllis McCoard and Lucinda Rooney as attendants.

Will concluded, "Though many of the people mentioned tonight are but memories to most of us, their spirit has been captured by the greatest free show on earth, which they helped to create. As we look forward to the third week in October, they will be with us once more while we enjoy a Pumpkin Show that is bigger and better than ever."

Miss Dhel Renick, chairman of the museum committee, commented on the Historical Society's County Fair exhibit. She noted that more than 1,000 persons enjoyed the display of Carl Zehner's antique music boxes and Mrs. William Blaney's spinning exhibition and doll collection.

Mrs. Ed Hickey noted that another Fair highlight was the Society's Style Show in which clothes from the 1860's through 1965 were modeled. Many wedding gowns belonging to Pickaway County residents were featured.

Miners Threaten Pension Strike

MASONTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Some 300 men claiming to represent soft coal miners in three states have voted strike action to back demands for a $50 monthly pension hike for retired miners.

Those attending the meeting, from Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, said retired miners need a hike in pension payments due to an increase in the cost of living. They now get $100 a month.

Business Briefs

The Kroger Co. has appointed Col. Stanley R. Schrotel, who is Cincinnati's chief of police and considered the nation's top local law enforcement officer, as director of security.

Colonel Schrotel's appointment will be effective on Tuesday, according to Jacob E. Davis, president of the retail food firm. He will be responsible for developing and implementing programs designed to curb Kroger losses caused by any kind of dishonesty.

He will devote full time attention to security problems throughout the firm's food distribution systems from the warehouse to the checkout lane and in the offices. He will work with all of the company's 27 retail divisions located in the major cities of 24 states, principally in the midwest and midsouth.

Colonel Schrotel, Cincinnati police chief since 1951, served as president of the International Assn. of Police Chiefs in 1962-63. He also has been a member of the President's Committee on Youth Crime and Juvenile Delinquency. He was appointed to the committee by the late President Kennedy and reappointed by President Johnson.

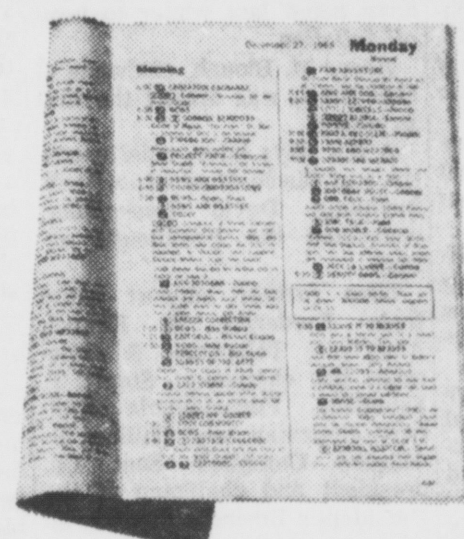

A graduate of the University of Cincinnati, Colonel Schrotel won a law degree after he joined the department by attending night classes at Salmon P. Chase College. He took the competitive civil service exam for chief when he was only 37 and won the post with a record score of 99.33 per cent.

More than 200 architects, engineers and building contractors from throughout Ohio are expected to attend a one-day "Energy Option Workshop" jointly sponsored by Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., and the East Ohio Gas Co. at the Columbus-Sheraton Hotel, Columbus, on Sept. 28.

C. R. Baker, Circleville manager for Columbia of Ohio, said the workshop will offer an analysis of new energy systems for office buildings, hotels, schools and other major structures.

"Architects, contractors, engineers and other interested persons in the Circleville area are invited to attend the meeting as guests of the gas company," Baker said. Additional information on the workshop may be obtained and advance registration made by contacting the local gas company office by Sept. 23.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the United Nations was born in San Francisco in 1945, just as World War II was ending, many people there and around the earth felt a brilliant sense of happiness.

Perhaps a new world was emerging from the labor pains of war and the endless mistakes and ferocities of mankind. That was the hope.

But the realists didn't share it. They thought that at best the United Nations might be only a step in the direction of a better world but, if so, only a faltering step. They were right.

When the U.N. General Assembly begins its 21st year Tuesday it will be a troubled organization of 117 member nations while the biggest in population, Red China, is excluded. And that will be one of the troubles.

It has been for years. Now again the United States, which has year by year kept Red China out, apparently will try to do it again. Yet, at times, the

Johnson administration has been using language both clear and foggy on its position toward the Peking government.

Excluding Red China won't be the only problem for the assembly, although this as much as anything shows the troubled condition of the world 21 years after San Francisco and how far short the early dreams fell.

The United Nations will have to get itself a secretary-general, either by finding a new man for the job or persuading U Thant, the Burmese, to stay on. Now finishing his five-year term, he said Sept. 1 he wants no more of it.

In explaining why, he used 1,000 rather nice words to say he is fed up, which is as good a commentary as any on the condition of the United Nations, one of whose main goals is supposed to be keeping the peace.

He called the war in Viet Nam a "reproach to the conscience of mankind." That war will be another U. N. problem.

And, as to keeping the peace, he said: "This responsibility of the United Nations has remained unfulfilled because of the continuing failure to agree on basic principles. The world situation appears to me to be extremely serious."

And he complained, without mentioning it by name, that Red China is not a member.

What follows illustrates the rather strange language the administration has been using about Red China.

Last March Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey defined American policy toward Red China as "containment without isolation." He said the problem was to contain Red China's militancy but not isolate it from the family of mankind.

At the same time he indicated there had been no change in U.S. opposition to U.N. membership for the Red Chinese.

In July, President Johnson said the peace this country seeks in Asia is a peace of "conciliation between Communist states and their non-Communist neighbors." But if anyone thought this meant a softening in the American attitude towards Red China, later statements showed he was wrong.

In August, Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said the U.S. position towards Red China "as of now" was unchanged although this country was carefully reviewing its position.

If that seemed to indicate a possible change, that was wrong, too. In September Goldberg said the Red China question has been "under review" for years but the United States had not changed its position.

Last week some unnamed U.S. officials said the whole matter had been under review but was unchanged. They spoke of a recent decision not to change. The next day the White House said it knew of no new or recent decision.

And Secretary of State Dean Rusk said he didn't know of any "new decision in point of time," that the problem was under review, and the United States hadn't changed its position on keeping Red China out of the United Nations.

Dumping of Dredgings On Land To Be Asked

CHICAGO (AP) — The Army plans to ask Congress for funds for an emergency program to fight pollution in 13 critical sections by dumping dredgings on land instead of in water.

The plans were revealed by Gen. Roy T. Dodge, head of the north central division of the Engineers' Corps. He said the engineers are considering depositing dredgings behind dikes and in abandoned quarries and strip mines instead of in water.

Some Business Leaders Back LBJ Tax Bill

NEW YORK (AP)—Some of the nation's top businessmen rallied behind President Johnson during the week, supporting his program to cool off inflation.

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., called the President's proposal "A sound approach to present economic problems."

Congress began consideration of the President's plan. It calls for a 16-month suspension of tax incentives for business investment in new equipment and buildings.

The suspension would apply both to a 7 per cent tax credit on business spending for machinery and to fast tax write offs, the accelerated depreciation allowed on commercial and industrial buildings.

Support for the President's plan was not universal, however, particularly among Republicans.

George W. Romney, the Republican governor of Michigan frequently mentioned as a possible presidential candidate, said, "Discouragement of plant expansion at this time is exactly the opposite of what we should be doing."

Romney said Johnson could have acted last winter to head off inflation.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel, was among the first to object.

A few days later, chief executives of Chase Manhattan Bank, including David Rockefeller, welcomed the President's action.

Then further support came from Frederick R. Kappel, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. chairman; Stuart T. Saunders, Pennsylvania Railroad chairman; and William B. Murphy, Campbell Soup Co. president and chairman of the President's Business Council, an advisory group.

But there were emphatic objections from a number of business organizations, including the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

A host of industries sought exemptions—aircraft, steel, home construction, public utilities and farmers.

A.V. Leshe, Douglas Aircraft Co. vice president, said suspension of the tax credit could dry up plane orders and plane production would be cut substantially if not stopped.

Daniel P. Loomis, Association of American Railroads president, said withdrawal of credit for equipment purchases would greatly hinder efforts to overcome a boxcar shortage.

Portrait of a Phantom

Greta Garbo Now 60 Years of Age, Still Mysterious, Still Beautiful

EDITOR'S NOTE — A lonely beauty who is the screen's leading legend and perhaps its greatest female talent, turned 60 this week. Greta Garbo today is almost a phantom, but after 25 years her films still are major attractions. AP columnist Bob Thomas describes Garbo's career and later life in a three-part series beginning today.

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — She travels through a shadowy world of her own making, slipping in and out of airports, trench-coated, with a slouch hat pulled down over one eye.

Sometimes an alert photographer spots her behind the dark glasses and steals a quick shot. She manages a wan smile, then vanishes to a waiting limousine and vanishes.

She is Great Garbo, born Greta Gustafsson in Stockholm, Sweden, 60 years ago Sunday. Some sources say 61. She has not acted in films for a quarter century, yet most critics agree she remains the screen's greatest actress.

Garbo lives in New York City, much as she has during her 40 years in America; alone. Her aloneness has long been a national joke, but she is not amused.

"I never said, 'I want to be alone,'" she once complained to a friend, "I only said, 'I want to be let alone.'" For the most part, she is. Old-time fans often observe her on the long walks she takes on Manhattan streets, an exemption for small firms.

Another part of the President's anti-inflation program moved through Congress to his desk—a bill giving federal supervisory agencies more flexible powers to control the savings rates paid by savings and loan associations.

The bill is aimed at simmering down the competition among financial institutions for savings account deposits.

Banks have been in the grip of the tightest money situation in 40 years, with so much of their deposits out on loan they have little money left to lend.

At the same time, they were faced with a big demand for loans during the week from corporations borrowing to finance federal income tax payments and quarterly dividend payments to stockholders.

Short-term interest rates went up sharply. Bills auctioned by the Treasury carried the highest discount rates on record.

but they respect her privacy.

Garbo has lived for many years in a cooperative apartment on 52nd Street overlooking the East River. Her trips have grown more infrequent. She makes a rare return to Europe, usually staying at some secluded place on the Riviera, or on the yacht of Aristotle Onassis. She comes to Hollywood once a year, visiting a few old friends like Katharine Hepburn, hair stylist Sidney Guiklaroff, and director George Cukor.

But most of the time she leads the solitary life. How did she get that way?

Her biographers have suggested that Garbo was a shy, sensitive girl who was hurt into a life for which she was temperamentally unsuited. The make-believe of being a motion picture actress appealed to her, but the clamor surrounding her status as a movie star proved more than she could endure.

Upon her arrival in Hollywood in 1926, she was immediately placed in the publicity mill at MGM. Press agents posed her with the studio's trademark lion AWAITING TRIAL — One of three Pennsylvania teenagers charged with murdering a South Carolina state patrolman, Kenneth Hayes Fleming, 17, Altoona, wears an iron cross as he is taken to the state penitentiary in Columbia to await trial. and in the silent-era version of cheesecake. The nadir came when she was required to don a sprinter's suit for a photograph with the University of Southern California rack coach.

She snapped: "When I am beeg like Gish" — Lillian was then the queen of MGM — "no more publicity like this; no more handshakes with prize-fighters."

Garbo gave only a few terse interviews before withdrawing into silence. Lon Chaney told her: "Don't talk to anyone; we are in the business of illusion."

The illusion of the "Divine Garbo" continued to grow during her 15 years in Hollywood and it remains vivid today. Friends say she is acutely conscious of that illusion and the way it is perpetuated by her 24 films, which can be seen on television and at Garbo festivals in arthouse theaters.

Over the years, many producers have announced plans to return Garbo to the screen, and she has not discouraged their overtures. Recently Ross Hunter sent her the script of "The Haven Train," in which he wanted her to play a nun. She returned it with the message that she didn't think she could portray a religious figure.

"I don't think she will ever act again," concluded the producer.

Westfall Adult Ag Class Slates Meet

The Westfall Adult Farmers Class will meet 8 p. m. Tuesday in the vocational agriculture room of Westfall High School.

J. Austin Dowden, office manager of the Pickaway County Agricultural and Stabilization Committee, will present the program.

Garbo's friends agree. Says one: "If Greta went back to work now, she would be competing with the way she appears in the films of her heyday. She looks marvelous today. But still, she is 60."

Next: Garbo's Hollywood years; memories of her leading men.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the United Nations was born in San Francisco in 1945, just as World War II was ending, many people there and around the earth felt a brilliant sense of happiness.

Perhaps a new world was emerging from the labor pains of war and the endless mistakes and ferocities of mankind. That was the hope.

But the realists didn't share it. They thought that at best the United Nations might be only a step in the direction of a better world but, if so, only a faltering step. They were right.

When the U.N. General Assembly begins its 21st year Tuesday it will be a troubled organization of 117 member nations while the biggest in population, Red China, is excluded. And that will be one of the troubles.

It has been for years. Now again the United States, which has year by year kept Red China out, apparently will try to do it again. Yet, at times, the

Johnson administration has been using language both clear and foggy on its position toward the Peking government.

Excluding Red China won't be the only problem for the assembly, although this as much as anything shows the troubled condition of the world 21 years after San Francisco and how far short the early dreams fell.

The United Nations will have to get itself a secretary-general, either by finding a new man for the job or persuading U Thant, the Burmese, to stay on. Now finishing his five-year term, he said Sept. 1 he wants no more of it.

In explaining why, he used 1,000 rather nice words to say he is fed up, which is as good a commentary as any on the condition of the United Nations, one of whose main goals is supposed to be keeping the peace.

He called the war in Viet Nam a "reproach to the conscience of mankind." That war will be another U. N. problem.

And, as to keeping the peace, he said: This responsibility of the United Nations has "remained unfulfilled because of the continuing failure to agree on basic principles. The world situation appears to me to be extremely serious."

And he complained, without mentioning it by name, that Red China is not a member.

What follows illustrates the rather strange language the administration has been using about Red China.

Last March Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey defined American policy toward Red China as "containment without isolation." He said the problem was to contain Red China's military but not isolate it from the family of mankind.

At the same time he indicated there had been no change in U.S. opposition to U.N. membership for the Red Chinese.

In July, President Johnson said the peace this country seeks in Asia is a peace of "conciliation between Communist states and their non-Communist neighbors." But if anyone thought this meant a softening in the American attitude towards Red China, later statements showed he was wrong.

In August, Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said the U.S. position towards Red China "as of now" was unchanged although this country was carefully reviewing its position.

If that seemed to indicate a possible change, that was wrong, too. In September Goldberg said the Red China question has been "under review" for years but the United States had not changed its position.

Last week some unnamed U.S. officials said the whole matter had been under review but was unchanged. They spoke of a recent decision not to change. The next day the White House said it new of no new or recent decision.

And Secretary of State Dean Rusk said he didn't know of any "new decision in point of time," that the problem was under review, and the United States hadn't changed its position on keeping Red China out of the United Nations.

Judge To Take Another Day Off in Pay Fuss

CRANSTON, I.I. (AP) — Judge William H. McSoley Jr. says he won't hold court on Thursday because the state has refused to raise the pay of lower court judges.

Judge McSoley said he added the Thursday session as an "extra day" when he took the bench in the Eighth District Court in 1952.

Big 'D' Meredith Hits Giants for Five Passes

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Football buffs in the Southwest used to call it Southern Meredith University. Next thing you know they'll be saying that Big D stands for Don.

Don Meredith, probably the most celebrated graduate of SMU since Doak Walker, threatened to take Dallas' nickname for his own Sunday when he threw five touchdown passes en route to the Dallas Cowboys' 52-7 humiliation of the New York Giants.

The overwhelming triumph in Dallas' National Football League opener—the Cowboys were idle last week when the rest of the teams opened—stamped the team as the one to beat in the Eastern Conference. The Cowboys' victory looked even bigger when Grier Bay knocked off Cleveland, the other big favorite in the East, 21-20. Pittsburgh surprised Detroit 17-3, Philadelphia handled Atlanta 23-10, St. Louis took Washington 23-7 and Baltimore bombed Minnesota 38-23 in the other Sunday games.

The Los Angeles Rams upset Chicago's Bears 31-17 Friday. Meredith, 28, and in his seventh season as a pro, appeared to be, at last, reaching his potential as a professional quarterback.

He completed 14 of 24 passes for 358 yards and five touchdowns, set up still another touchdown with a 12-yard run and played less than three full quarters in the Cowboys' rout of New York.

"Meredith played as near a perfect game at quarterback as I ever saw," said Coach Tom Landry. "He was in command all the time, moved the team with great confidence, made only one poor pass and all-in-all played the best game of his career."

He whiled away the time playing catch with Bob Hayes and Dan Reeves. Hayes caught six passes for 195 yards, including touchdowns of 74 and 39 yards. Reeves took six for 120 yards, including touchdown of 2, 1, and 19.

Baltimore veteran Johnny Unitas had a passable afternoon, too. He hit on four touchdowns after the Colts had spotted Minnesota a 16-0 lead, leading Baltimore from behind and breaking Y.A. Tittle's old career touchdown pass record. He connected on throws of 83, 40, 26 and 4 yards for a career total of 214, two more than Tittle's old mark.

Baltimore, however, remained a full game behind Western Conference co-leaders Los Angeles and Green Bay when the Packers' Jim Taylor crashed over for the deciding touchdown against Cleveland with three minutes left.

Taylor scored on a nine-yard swing pass from Bart Starr, sidestepping two defenders on his way to the goal line, culminating an 85-yard drive and putting the Packers ahead for the first time.

Miami Beats Big Ten Foe

Purdue Squashes Bobcats, 42-3

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Big Ten giant-killer Miami (Ohio) was up to its old tricks but Ohio University found mighty Purdue a tough hurdle Saturday in games highlighting the first football weekend on the Ohio collegiate scene.

Coach Bob Schmebeckler's Mid American Conference Redskins stunned Indiana 20-10 as Miami chalked up its third triumph in its last five encounters with Big 10 foes.

Brilliant Bruce Matte, Miami's versatile quarterback, directed the Redskins attack and time and again caught the Hoosier defense with nifty rollout runs.

But the turning point came late in the third period when Bob Glover sped 86 yards with a kickoff after Indiana had taken a brief 10-7 lead. That go-ahead touchdown looked up the victory over Indiana Coach John Pont, who once guided the fortunes of the Redskins.

Ohio U., which lost all 10 games a year ago, couldn't contain slick Bob Griese of Purdue and the classy Boilermakers rolled up a 42-3 decision.

But Coach Bill Hess' club gave the winners fits as the Bobcats trailed only 7-3 going into the final minute of the first half.

In other big ones, Toledo's proud defensive unit blanked Xavier 9-0; Kent blew a 27-23 contest to Buffalo; Dayton humbled Richmond 23-0 and Akron shaded Northern Michigan 18-10.

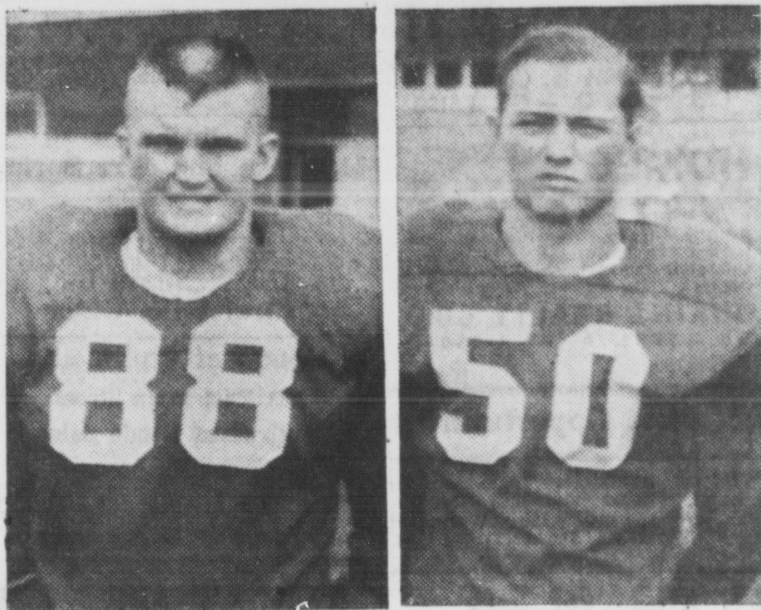

Bob Buchs' 32-yard field goal and a 78-yard scramble by fullback Bob Pfeiffer led to the game's only touchdown gave Toledo all its points.

Buffalo turned two fumbles and a blocked punt into three of its four touchdowns against Kent. Kent was halted on the Buffalo three-inch line as the gun sounded.

Dayton got three field goals from Bob Thomas while halfback Billy Mayo hauled in an aerial from Jerry Biebuyck and dashed 72 yards for one score and then swept 53 yards in the fourth quarter for the final marker.

Sophomore fullback Ron Tyson plunged for two touchdowns leading the Zips over Northern Michigan before 40,000 in the Rubber Bowl.

Meet the Tigers

The Circleville High School football team this year is blessed with two hardnosed, hard running fullbacks. Tom Jenkins (88) a senior, and Eddie Wells (50) a sophomore, give the Tigers plenty of power at the position. Jenkins, a utility man in the past who has seen action at end and tackle, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jenkins. Wells is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Wells.

First Rain Hits Late for L.A.

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the rain finally fell on Los Angeles, it was too little and too late for the Dodgers.

Philadelphia's Larry Jackson was putting the wraps on a 4-0 victory over the National League leaders Sunday when a downpour halted play for seven minutes at the start of the ninth inning.

The Dodgers have learned to live without runs — they had been shut out 14 times this season before Jackson blanked them. And Pittsburgh's 3-1 victory at San Francisco, which trimmed their lead to 1½ games, caused no panic in the Los Angeles clubhouse. But rain was something else for the Dodgers.

They have never had a home game rained out since migrating west from Brooklyn nine years ago. Sunday's rain delay was the first they'd ever had to sit out at Dodger Stadium.

When the rain let up, Jackson mopped up his 15th victory and fifth shutout of the year. The rubber-armed, 35-year-old veteran scattered seven hits and allowed only one Dodger runner past second base.

Meanwhile, Woody Fryman, who had not pitched a complete game in two months, tamed the Giants on four hits, losing his shutout bid when Tito Fuentes homered in the ninth.

The rookie left-hander beat Gaylor Perry, who has been unsuccessful in seven straight starts since becoming the first 20-game winner in the majors four weeks ago.

Houston swept a doubleheader from New York 9-2 and 6-5; Atlanta ripped Cincinnati 9-4, and Chicago edged St. Louis in other NL action.

In the American League, Chicago nipped Baltimore 4-3; Cleveland topped Detroit 6-5 in 10 innings; Minnesota downed New York 5-3 in 10; California beat Boston 5-3, and Washington shaded Kansas City 1-0 after bowing 3-0 in the completion of a suspended game.

Thoroughbred Suffers Loss

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tom Rolfe raised the question whether he is ready to take on Buckpasser, the best of the 3-year-olds, Oct. 1 in a weight-for-age contest.

Assagai all but wrapped up the grass course title and a bid to the Washington, D.C., International at Laurel, Md., Nov. 11.

Tom Rolfe, last year's 3-year-old champion bidding for handicapper honors this year, received a setback when he was unable to give 18 pounds to lightly regarded Stanislas in the $114,500 Michigan Mile and One-Eighth at Detroit. Stanislas, carrying 109 pounds and paying $44 for $2, beat the ace of Raymond Gues's Powhatan Stable packing 127 pounds as the odds-on favorite, by 3½ lengths Saturday.

The little son of the Italian sire, Ribot, is slated to hook up with the sensational Buckpasser and Buffle, another 3-year-old, in the 1¼ miles of the $100,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct. He'll be asked to carry 128 pounds, five more than the 3-year-olds.

Charles Engelhard's Assagai, a non-winner in eight races on dirt tracks as a 2-year-old in 1965, got up in the final stride to edge Ginger Fizz in the 1 3-16 miles of the $100,000 United Nations on the turf at Atlantic City for his seventh victory in 10 starts this year. Bold Bidder, making his first appearance on the grass, wound up eighth, as Assagai earned $65,000 and paid $6.80.

Don Ross' Open Fire, believed to be a shoo-in for the filly and mare handicap crown after three impressive stakes triumphs, couldn't do better than fourth in the $85,200 Bel-dame at Aqueduct. Summer Scandal, owned by David G. Volkert's Harborvale Stable, set all the pace in the 1¼-mile race and won by eight lengths for her seventh success, including the last three outings, in 11 starts.

Circleville Reserves Top Cavaliers, 6-0

The Circleville reserve football team defeated the Chillicothe reserves, 6-0, Saturday morning on the Cavaliers' gridiron.

The battle was highlighted by some excellent defensive play on the part of both teams.

The Tigers halted a Chillicothe drive on the eight-yard line that started with the opening kickoff.

The Cavaliers did not threaten again until late in the fourth period. They ran out of time at the Tiger five-yard marker.

CIRCLEVILLE'S scoring play was a pass from Rick Sims to Bob McNelly in the second period.

The Tiger coaching staff reported that Sims, a sophomore field general, looked good in the passing department. McNelly and Dan Smith, a fullback, ran well for the young Tigers.

Wayne Garrison recovered a fumble for the Tigers and Mike Young intercepted a pass.

The next game for the Tiger reserves will be 9:30 a. m. Saturday when they host Chillicothe in a return engagement. The tilt will be played on the high school field.

Packers Nip Cleveland In Browns Home Opener

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vince Lombardi flashed a big grin. "I'm happy to come out of it," he said. "It was a real shocker."

"Cleveland is the best team we've played to date, including exhibitions," the Green Bay coach said Sunday after his Packers trailed all the way before beating the Browns, 21-20, in the last three minutes.

Lombardi summed it up: "They made the big play against us in the first half and we controlled the ball in the second half."

Browns Coach Blanton Collier agreed. "The Packers had a tougher rush in the second half," he said. "Or maybe our offensive line lost a little something. It was a mean, tough game, a hard one to lose. We made mistakes at the wrong time."

A record opening day crowd of 83,943 saw the National Football League cruncher, many looking for revenge of the Packers 23-12 victory over Cleveland.

A fullback did have the final word—Green Bay's Jim Taylor. He took a nine-yard swing pass from Bart Starr—on fourth down—and slipped by Jim Houston and Erich Barnes at the five yard line for the clincher with 2:45 left.

Taylor, who cracked one yard for a third period touchdown, said simply, "It was a rough game."

Green Bay's first touchdown stunned the crowd. Starr had a fourth down and one situation on the Browns' 44 in the second quarter. He trailed 14-0.

He faked to Taylor, then flipped a short pass on the left side to Paul Hornung, who beat Mike

Howell down the sidelines for a 44-yard touchdown.

"It was a perfect setup for a play," Collier said. "We went to sleep."

The Browns had a 17-7 half-time lead on Frank Ryan's 11 and 24-yard touchdown passes to Gary Collins, plus a 42-yard field goal by Lou Groza that hit the cross bar and bounced over.

But it was all Green Bay after the intermission. The defense knifed in at Ryan, who completed 5 of 11 after hitting 10 for 13 in the first half.

Groza kicked a 46-yarder in the fourth quarter and Cleveland still led, 20-14, with about 11 minutes left. Then Starr went to work.

He moved the Packers 85 yards and hit 7 of 8 passes along the way, using over eight minutes before Taylor scored.

Lombardi's Western Division Packers have a 2-0 record. The Browns are 1-1 and return to Eastern Division competition next Sunday. "We're disappointed but not discouraged," said Collier. "We must look forward to St. Louis."

Big 'D' Meredith Hits Giants for Five Passes

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Football buffs in the Southwest used to call it Southern Meredith University. Next thing you know they'll be saying that Big D stands for Don.

Don Meredith, probably the most celebrated graduate of SMU since Doak Walker, threatened to take Dallas' nickname for his own Sunday when he threw five touchdown passes en route to the Dallas Cowboys' 52-7 humiliation of the New York Giants.

The overwhelming triumph in Dallas' National Football League opener—the Cowboys were idle last week when the rest of the teams opened—stamped the team as the one to beat in the Eastern Conference.

The Cowboys' victory looked even bigger when Greey Bay knocked off Cleveland, the other big favorite in the East, 21-20. Pittsburgh surprised Detroit 17-3. Philadelphia handled Atlanta 23-10. St. Louis took Washington 23-7 and Baltimore bombed Minnesota 38-23 in the other Sunday games.

The Los Angeles Rams upset Chicago's Bears 31-17 Friday. Meredith, 28, and in his seventh season as a pro, appeared to be, at last, reaching his potential as a professional quarterback.

He completed 14 of 24 passes for 358 yards and five touchdowns, set up still another touchdown with a 12-yard run and played less than three full quarters in the Cowboys' rout of New York.

"Meredith played as near a perfect game at quarterback as I ever saw," said Coach Tom Landry. "He was in command all the time, moved the team with great confidence, made only one poor pass and all-in-all played the best game of his career."

He whiled away the time playing catch with Bob Hayes and Dan Reeves. Hayes caught six passes for 195 yards, including touchdowns of 74 and 39 yards. Reeves took six for 120 yards, including touchdown of 2, 1, and 19.

Baltimore veteran Johnny Unitas had a passable afternoon, too. He hit on four touchdowns passes after the Colts had spotted Minnesota a 16-0 lead, leading Baltimore over behind and breaking Y.A. Tittle's old career touchdown pass record. He connected on throws of 83, 40, 26 and 4 yards for a career total of 214, two more than Tittle's old mark.

Baltimore, however, remained a full game behind Western Conference co-leaders Los Angeles and Green Bay when the Packers' Jim Taylor crashed over for the deciding touchdown against Cleveland with three minutes left.

Taylor scored on a nine-yard swing pass from Bart Starr, sidestepping two defenders on his way to the goal line, culminating an 85-yard drive and putting the Packers ahead for the first time.

The Circleville reserve football team defeated the Chillicothe reserves, 6-0, Saturday morning on the Cavaliers' gridiron.

The battle was highlighted by some excellent defensive play on the part of both teams.

The Cavaliers did not threaten again until late in the fourth period. They ran out of time at the Tiger five-yard marker.

CIRCLEVILLE'S scoring play was a pass from Rick Sims to Bob McNelly in the second period.

The Tiger coaching staff reported that Sims, a southpaw sophomore field general, looked good in the passing department. McNelly and Dan Smith, a fullback, ran well for the young Tigers.

Wayne Garrison recovered a fumble for the Tigers and Mike Young intercepted a pass.

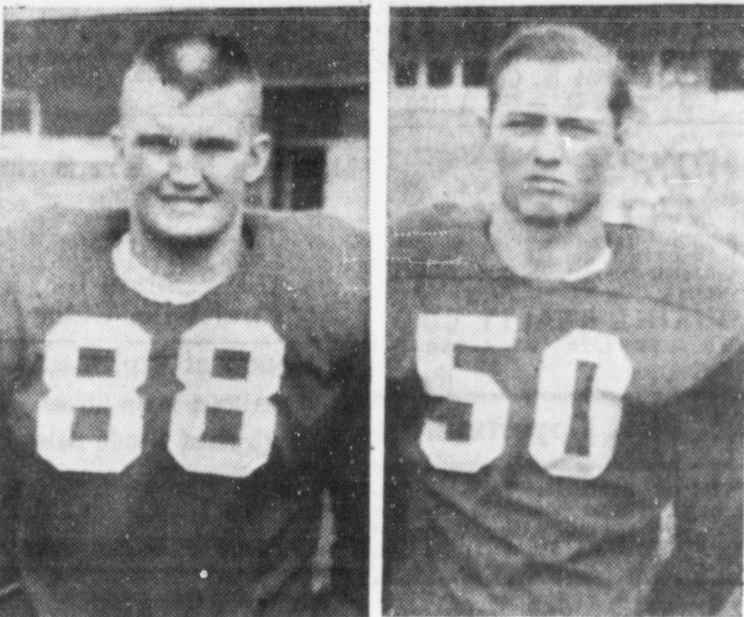

The next game for the Tiger reserves will be 9:30 a. m. Saturday when they host Chillicothe in a return engagement. The tilt will be played on the high school field.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Rafael Osuna and Joaquin Loyola converted the fifth Colonial National Invitation Tennis Tournament into a Mexican fiesta Sunday, whisking away singles and doubles tennis championships.

Osuna, long-time Davis Cup competitor, captured his second Colonial singles crown, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 over Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Meet the Tigers

The Circleville High School football team this year is blessed with two hardnosed, hard running fullbacks. Tom Jenkins (88) a senior, and Eddie Wells (50) a sophomore, give the Tigers plenty of power at the position. Jenkins, a utility man in the past who has seen action at end and tackle, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jenkins. Wells is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Wells.

First Rain Hits Late for L.A.

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the rain finally fell on Los Angeles, it was too little and too late for the Dodgers.

They have never had a home game rained out since migrating west from Brooklyn nine years ago. Sunday's rain delay was the first they'd ever had to sit out at Dodger Stadium.

When the rain let up, Jackson mopped up his 15th victory and fifth shutout of the year. The rubber-armed, 35-year-old veteran scattered seven hits and allowed only one Dodger runner past second base.

Meanwhile, Woody Fryman, who had not pitched a complete game in two months, tamed the Giants on four hits, losing his shutout bid when Tito Fuentes homered in the ninth.

The rookie left-hander beat Gaylor Perry, who has been unsuccessful in seven straight starts since becoming the first 20-game winner in the majors four weeks ago.

Houston swept a doubleheader from New York 9-2 and 6-5; Atlanta ripped Cincinnati 9-4, and Chicago edged St. Louis in other NL action.

In the American League, Chicago nipped Baltimore 4-3; Cleveland topped Detroit 6-5 in 10 innings; Minnesota downed New York 5-3 in 10; California beat Boston 5-3, and Washington shaded Kansas City 1-0 after bowing 3-0 in the completion of a suspended game.

The little son of the Italian sire, Ribot, is slated to hook up with the sensational Buckpasser and Buffle, another 3-year-old, in the 1 1/4 miles of the $100,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct. He'll be asked to carry 128 pounds, five more than the 3-year-olds.

Charles Engelhard's Assagai, a non-winner in eight races on dirt tracks as a 2-year-old in 1965, got up in the final stride to edge Ginger Fizz in the 1 3/16 miles of the $100,000 United Nations on the turf at Atlantic City for his seventh victory in 10 starts this year. Bold Bidder, making his first appearance on the grass, wound up eighth, as Assagai earned $65,000 and paid $6.80.

Forecasters
Watch UCLA,
MSU Teams

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Michigan State and UCLA will not meet on the field this year, but the first big weekend of college football showed they might tangle at the top of the national rankings.

The Spartans, No. 2 in pre-season polls, swept past North Carolina State 28-10 Saturday, prompting Wolfpack Coach Earle Edwards to say: "They just had too much for us."

The Spartans might have too much for anyone, although UCLA, No. 4, could argue — again.

The Uclans unveiled their 1966 edition by belting unfortunate Pittsburgh 57-14.

Michigan State, which beat UCLA in regular play last season before losing an unbeaten season and No. 1 ranking to the Bruins in the Rose Bowl, ground out their victory as quarterback Jimmy Raye filled the shoes of departed Steve Juday. Raye ran for one touchdown and set up two others in the crunching attack of the Spartans, who are ineligible for the Rose Bowl this season.

Quarterback Gary Beban is still around for UCLA and he scored two TDs and passed for a third as he hit eight of 13 passes for 100 yards and ran for 79 more.

First-ranked Alabama did not play, but will begin its quest of a third straight national title Saturday against Louisiana Tech.

Other teams in the Top Ten had their problems, except Purdue, expected to contest Michigan State for the Big Ten crown.

The Boilermakers sped by Ohio University on Bob Griese's three scoring passes in a tune-up for their collision with idle Notre Dame, No. 6, Saturday.

UCLA's chief competition, Southern California, ranked ninth, squeezed by Texas as Troy Winslow passed for 177 yards to overshadow Bill Bradley, the quarterback counted on to lead the Longhorns back into the rankings.

Nebraska, No. 3, and Arkansas, No. 5, also had their troubles. The Cornhuskers barely got by Texas Christian 14-10 and the Razorbacks nipped Oklahoma State by the same score. Arkansas needed Jon Brittenum's 11-yard scoring run in the last three minutes for its success.

Syracuse, No. 7, and Tennessee, No. 10, joined Alabama on the sidelines.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mission impossible" had for its mission the job of spitting some nuclear warheads out of a dictatorship in South America. And it took an extremely long Saturday evening hour to accomplish the assignment.

The CBS program was one of three new shows bowing in over the weekend. The others were NBC's "T. H. E. Cat," on Friday and CBS' Western comedy, "Pistols 'n' Petticoats" the following evening. None of them proved to be anything more than stock treatments of familiar themes.

The sole hour show was "Mission Impossible." It had the least amount of plot. And it resolved that problem by filling the extra time with a lesson on applying stage makeup and with a demonstration of electronic methods of breaking down the door of a bank vault.

"Mission Impossible" is an organization of secret agents for hire — but only for the good side, of course. The head man, played by Steven Hill, didn't have much to do, but he had on hand guest star Wally Cox playing a master safe cracker, Martin Landau, playing a master of disguises, and Barbara Bain as a mistress diverting masculine attention at the right time.

It was also pretty confusing, not to mention boring.

Also on the busy side was "T. H. E. Cat," whose title is supposed to be the name of the hero, Thomas Hewitt Edward Cat, who by a curious writer's coincidence is a retired cat burglar. He is very adept at scurrying over rooftops, climbing walls and dropping lightly from considerable heights to save the client's bacon. He is a professional bodyguard. The first show was full of demonstrations of his skills and when they add some plot to the action, it could turn into a diverting show.

"Pistols 'n' petticoats" chose to make its first appearance not to mention boring.

Watch UCLA,
MSU Teams

Michigan State and UCLA will not meet on the field this year, but the first big weekend of college football showed they might tangle at the top of the national rankings.

The Spartans, No. 2 in pre-season polls, swept past North Carolina State 28-10 Saturday, prompting Wolfpack Coach Earle Edwards to say: "They just had too much for us."

The Spartans might have too much for anyone, although UCLA, No. 4, could argue — again.

The Uclans unveiled their 1966 edition by belting unfortunate Pittsburgh 57-14.

Michigan State, which beat UCLA in regular play last season before losing an unbeaten season and No. 1 ranking to the Bruins in the Rose Bowl, ground out their victory as quarterback Jimmy Raye filled the shoes of departed Steve Juday. Raye ran for one touchdown and set up two others in the crunching attack of the Spartans, who are ineligible for the Rose Bowl this season.

Quarterback Gary Beban is still around for UCLA and he scored two TDs and passed for a third as he hit eight of 13 passes for 100 yards and ran for 79 more.

First-ranked Alabama did not play, but will begin its quest of a third straight national title Saturday against Louisiana Tech.

Other teams in the Top Ten had their problems, except Purdue, expected to contest Michigan State for the Big Ten crown.

The Boilermakers sped by Ohio University on Bob Griese's three scoring passes in a tune-up for their collision with idle Notre Dame, No. 6 Saturday.

UCLA's chief competition, Southern California, ranked ninth, squeezed by Texas as Troy Winslow passed for 177 yards to overshadow Bill Bradley, the quarterback counted on to lead the Longhorns back into the rankings.

Nebraska, No. 3, and Arkansas, No. 5, also had their troubles. The Cornhuskers barely got by Texas Christian 14-10 and the Razorbacks nipped Oklahoma State by the same score. Arkansas needed Jon Britenum's 11-yard scoring run in the last three minutes for its success.

Syracuse, No. 7, and Tennessee, No. 10, joined Alabama on the sidelines.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mission Impossible" had for its mission the job of spitting some nuclear warheads out of a dictatorship in South America. And it took an extremely long Saturday evening hour to accomplish the assignment.

The CBS program was one of three new shows bowing in over the weekend. The others were NBC's "T. H. E. Cat," on Friday and CBS' Western comedy, "Pistols 'n' Petticoats" the following evening. None of them proved to be anything more than stock treatments of familiar themes.

The sole hour show was "Mission Impossible." It had the least amount of plot. And it resolved that problem by filling the extra time with a lesson on applying stage makeup and with a demonstration of breaking down the door of a bank vault.

"Mission Impossible" is an organization of secret agents for hire — but only for the good side, of course. The head man, played by Steven Hill, didn't have much to do, but he had on hand guest star Wally Cox playing a master stage cracker, Martin Landau, playing a master of disguises, and Barbara Bain as a mistress diverting masculine attention at the right time.

It was also pretty confusing, not to mention boring.

Also on the busy side was "T. H. E. Cat," whose title is supposed to be the name of the hero, Thomas Hewitt Edward Cat, who by a curious writer's coincidence is a retired cat burglar. He is very adept at scurrying over rooftops, climbing walls and dropping lightly from considerable heights to save the client's bacon. He is a professional bodyguard. The first show was full of demonstrations of his skills and when they add some plot to the action, it could turn into a diverting show.

"Pistols 'n' Petticoats" chose to make its first appearance with a not very funny story about tactics of a pioneer woman, the Widow Hanks, in persuading a Tobacco Road-type family that baths and education are more fun than dirt and ignorance. Ann Sheridan plays the widow and the program may get to be more amusing when her character as a sort of lady-like Annie Oakley is given a chance to develop.

A disappointing revival was Jackie Gleason's return to his 11-year scoring run in the last three minutes for its success.

Syracuse, No. 7, and Tennessee, No. 10, joined Alabama on the sidelines.

Veep Defends U.S. Policies

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey spent six hours in Cleveland Sunday politicking for state Democratic Party candidates, stressing the need to battle slums and telling the people that the U.S. will not turn Viet Nam over to the Communists.

He also visited the Hough area, scene of Negro rioting this summer.

Humphrey told the 110,000 persons at Euclid amusement park for the annual Cuyahoga County Democratic Steer Roast that the United States will continue to "stop the aggressor."

He made it plain that key issues in elections this fall are Viet Nam and the nation's economy.

The vice president said "the roadblock to peace is in Ho Chi

Minh, in Mao and in Communist China . . . and any candidate for Congress knows that."

Let me make this crystal clear, the roadblock to peace is not in Washington." Then he added:

"Let our enemies know we do not cringe in fear," he warned. "We do not retreat, we will not turn over 50 million people in Southeast Asia to the Communists. We will not do it."

About economy Humphrey said: "Business profits are good, wages are good. Farm income is good. Dividends are good. And the country is good." He said Democrats will meet the challenge of leveling off the economy.

Humphrey also told the crowd: "Unless we have the courage to do something about it, we shall have two nations rather than one—a nation of the suburban prosperous and a nation of the urban poor."

He defined slum as shabby and sleazy buildings. It is rubbish piled high in the alleys. It is the second-rate schooling for those who need the best. It is the shadow of violence over the streets."

Humphrey said that Cleveland had first-hand experience with violence growing out of "torments and tensions."

"We cannot let destruction and terror take over our streets in the name of any cause . . . but at the same time we cannot turn our backs on the conditions which produce torment and tension," he said.

At an airport luncheon earlier in the day, the vice president told some 450 Democratic officials that they should support the party. He said he is supporting Frazier Reams Jr., as the Democratic candidate for governor.

Powell, a Negro, preached Sunday at Harlem's Abyssinian Baptist Church where he is pastor and announced plans for Tuesday's rally at the A. Philip Randolph Institute. Randolph, head of the AFL-CIO Sleeping Car Porters Union, is to be rally chairman.

Powell's sermon was on Daniel in the lion's den. It contained no political remarks.

But at the end of the 90-minute service before about 2,000 persons, Powell said of the committee members' move against him: "This is the reward I get for excellence."

He said he has been called "the best chairman on the Hill" by Presidents John F. Kennedy and Johnson and by House Speaker John W. McCormack. Fifty-four major bills were passed during his chairmanship, he said.

Powell could not be reached for comment on Gibbons' statements. An aide to Powell said only, "It'll all come to pass on Thursday."

A Powell spokesman said previously that Powell has tried to discourage any demonstrations in Washington.

Gibbons also said in the interview that he has received "a tremendous response" in support of his move against Powell. Much of the support has come from Negroes, he said.

"They (the Negroes) feel that this man has betrayed the trust in the place of leadership where he could have been of such great help to him," he said.

He said only a few negative responses have been received and most of those apparently were from members of Powell's church.

Powell's travels, absenteeism, legal and domestic difficulties and his recent endorsement of the "black power" approach to racial problems have kept him a center of controversy.

"Mr. Powell's actions have become damaging to the programs we have in our committee, and reflect so on the integrity of Congress that this is necessary," Gibbons said when he confirmed his plan.

Stocks Move Irregularly

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined irregularly early this afternoon as profits were taken on last week's big recovery. Trading was moderate.

Gains and losses ran mostly from fractions to about a point. A 3-point loss by pivotal Du Pont was a depressant to the averages.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 4.06 at 810.24.

The trend was definitely lower among aerospace issues, electricals, drugs, oils and minerals.

Nonferrous metals were mixed. Rails were down a little on balance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .6 at 292.5 with industrials off .9, rails off .2 and utilities off .3.

Smoldering Fire Damages Auto Interior

A fire reportedly caused by a lighted cigarette smoldered throughout the night in an automobile owned by Norman Kutler, 1110 Atwater Ave. and was not discovered until 7:15 a. m. today.

City firefighters estimated damage to the interior of the car at $200.

Pope Asks ...

(Continued from Page 1) after his two-month summer retreat. Vatican sources said the Pope had acknowledged that all his diplomatic efforts to end the war had achieved nothing. They said with this encyclical he was launching an intensified program to influence world opinion at the level of the people.

The sources said the Pope had decided on this course particularly because of the decision of U Thant to quit as secretary-general of the United Nations. The Pope and Thant have been working closely in efforts to promote peace, and the sources said the Pope considered Thant's departure a grave blow.

"It seems to us," the Pope said in his encyclical, "as it seemed to our more recent predecessors, that a very provident God has committed to us a special task: namely that we labor with patient and persevering effort for the preservation and the strengthening of the peace."

"For we are threatened by a more extensive and more disastrous calamity that endangers the human family, even as a bloody and difficult war is raging, particularly in areas of East Asia."

not immediately linked to the case.

The rest of the story is full of questions.

Dr. Andrew Toman, coroner of Cook County, said marks on Valerie's body indicated she struggled with the killer. But no sound was heard other than the moan.

Toman also said the "attacker obviously came into the house to murder someone." But Police Chief Daley was unwilling to commit himself to this theory or to one that the crime had started out as a burglary.

While Toman said the murder was planned, no one came up with a motive. Daley said there was no indication of anyone having "hard feelings toward Valerie."

Valerie, a June graduate of Cornell University, had been working in her father's campaign. Police said they would question persons she had contacted during the political work.

Percy's campaign manager, Scott Cohen, said Percy is still in the race for senator but that campaigning will be suspended. Sen. Douglas, telegraphing his condolences, said he too was calling off his campaign.

Douglas's message was one of a thousand or more telegrams and telephone calls offering sympathy.

Percy's political career includes an unsuccessful try for the governorship of Illinois in 1964. He was chairman of the 1960 GOP National Platform Committee. He resigned as chairman of Bell Howell Co. when he ran for governor. He had become president and chief executive officer of the firm in 1964 at the age of 29.

Valerie, her twin, Sharon, and their brother, Roger, 19, were children of Percy's first marriage, to Jeanne Dickerson who died in 1947. Two other children, Gail, 13, and Mark, 11, were born during his second marriage.

The slaying shocked residents of Kenilworth, a community of fewer than 3,000. Neighbors, classmates and friends spoke of Valerie in glowing terms.

"She was loved and admired by everyone in the community," said a neighbor, Mrs. Nelson D. Stoker.

Three Plead Guilty at Arraignment

Three persons entered pleas of guilty during an arraignment session Saturday to indictments returned by the September term of Pickaway County Grand Jury.

Another three persons pleaded innocent and five cases were continued, including three secret cases. Pleading guilty to accusations in indictments were:

Franklin E. Sollars, who was handed a $74 suspended fine after charges of grand larceny were reduced to petit larceny.

Charles E. Hamp, 613 Beaver Ave., pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with forcible entry and grand larceny. Judge William Ammer delayed sentencing until Hamp completes a 60-day stay in Lima State Hospital for observation.

LAURENCE Boltenhouse, S. Scioto St., was placed on probation for three years after pleading guilty to non-support charges.

Entering pleas of innocent were Cary Blevins, John Fyfe and George Keaton, all of Circleville, who are accused of assault with a deadly weapon. No date has been set for their hearing.

Cases were continued for Gene Giffin, 476 Dearborn Ave., and Harvey Lee Jordan, Route 1, Chillicothe, both indicted for failing to support their minor children.

Arraignments for the three secret cases will be scheduled at a later date, according to Judge Ammer, along with trial dates for the men who pleaded innocent to the indictment charges.

MOM'S GOT A NEW FLAME!
...AND DAD APPROVES!

And well he might. Because Mom's new flame is a clean, modern, dependable Gas range.

It was love at first light.

Her new flame is the sensitive type. Responds to her slightest whim. It starts cooking when she wants, stops cooking the instant she turns off the burner. And offers 1,001 shades of heat in between.

Gas takes the guesswork out of cooking. And this instant control means less wasted heat before and after the actual cooking. That's one of the keep-your-kitchen-cool features of a Gas range.

Only Gas ranges let you broil with the oven door closed. That's a keep-your-kitchen-clean feature of Gas.

In the make-your-kitchen-pretty department, Gas ranges offer exciting new styles, gleaming eye-level ovens, appetizing new colors. New cooking ideas, too, only on modern Gas ranges—ovens that keep dinner serving-hot for hours without overcooking, a new automatic self-basting Gas rotisserie and many others you'll have to see to believe.

But best of all is the keep-your-family-happy feature. It's simply this: Food looks better and tastes better when it's cooked with a clean Gas flame.

In fact, now that Mom's cooking with Gas, Dad comes home for lunch.

Here's more food for thought: Think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

Veep Defends U.S. Policies

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey spent six hours in Cleveland Sunday politicking for state Democratic Party candidates, stressing the need to battle slums and telling the people that the U.S. will not turn Viet Nam over to the Communists.

He also visited the Hough area, scene of Negro rioting this summer.

Humphrey told the 110,000 persons at Euclid amusement park for the annual Cuyahoga County Democratic Steer Roast that the United States will continue to "stop the aggressor."

He made it plain that key issues in elections this fall are Viet Nam and the nation's economy.

The vice president said "the roadblock to peace is in Ho Chi who say they have the votes (at least 16 on the 31-member committee) to transfer Powell's powers as chairman to six sub-committee chairmen. The move is to be made Thursday.

Powell, a Negro, preached Sunday at Harlem's Abyssinian Baptist Church where he is pastor and announced plans for Tuesday's rally at the A. Philip Randolph Institute. Randolph, head of the AFL-CIO Sleeping Car Porters Union, is to be rally chairman.

Powell's sermon was on Daniel in the lion's den. It contained no political remarks.

But at the end of the 90-minute service before about 2,000 persons, Powell said of the committee members' move against him: "This is the reward I get for excellence."

He said he has been called "the best chairman on the Hill" by Presidents John F. Kennedy and Johnson and by House Speaker John W. McCormack. Fifty-four major bills were passed during his chairmanship, he said.

Powell could not be reached for comment on Gibbons' statements. An aide to Powell said only, "It'll all come to pass on Thursday."

A Powell spokesman said previously that Powell has tried to discourage any demonstrations in Washington.

Gibbons also said in the interview that he has received "a tremendous response" in support of his move against Powell. Much of the support has come from Negroes, he said, some of it "quiet moving."

"They (the Negroes) feel that this man has betrayed the trust in the place of leadership where he could have been of such great help to him," he said.

He said only a few negative responses have been received and most of those apparently were from members of Powell's church.

Powell's travels, absenteeism, legal and domestic difficulties and his recent endorsement of the "black power" approach to racial problems have kept him a center of controversy.

"Mr. Powell's actions have become's damaging to the programs we have in our committee, and reflect so on the integrity of Congress that this is necessary," Gibbons said when he confirmed his plan.

Minh, in Mao and in Communist China . . . and any candidate for Congress knows that."

Let me make this crystal clear, the roadblock to peace is not in Washington." Then he added:

"Let our enemies know we do not cringe in fear," he warned. "We do not retreat, we will not turn over 50 million people in Southeast Asia to the Communists. We will not do it."

About economy Humphrey said: "Business profits are good, wages are good. Farm income is good. Dividends are good. And the country is good." He said Democrats will meet the challenge of leveling off the economy.

Humphrey also told the crowd:

"Unless we have the courage to do something about it, we shall have two nations rather than one—a nation of the suburban prosperous and a nation of the urban poor."

He defined slumism as shabby and sleazy buildings. It is rubbish piled high in the alleys. It is the second-rate schooling for those who need the best. It is the shadow of violence over the streets."

Humphrey said that Cleveland had first-hand experience with violence growing out of "torments and tensions."

"We cannot let destruction and terror take over our streets in the name of any cause . . . but at the same time we cannot turn our backs on the conditions which produce torment and tension," he said.

At an airport luncheon earlier in the day, the vice president told some 450 Democratic officials that they should support the party. He said he is supporting Prazier Reams Jr. as the Democratic candidate for governor.

The trend was definitely lower among aerospace issues, electricals, drugs, oils and minerals.

Nonferrous metals were mixed. Rails were down a little on balance.

after his two-month summer retreat. Vatican sources said the Pope had acknowledged that all his diplomatic efforts to end the war had achieved nothing. They said with this encyclical he was launching an intensified program to influence world opinion at the level of the people.

The sources said the Pope had decided on this course particularly because of the decision of U Thant to quit as secretary-general of the United Nations. The Pope and Thant have been working closely in efforts to promote peace, and the sources said the Pope considered Thant's departure a grave blow.

"It seems to us," the Pope said in his encyclical, "as it seemed to our more recent predecessors, that a very provident God has committed to us a special task: namely that we labor with patient and persevering effort for the preservation and the strengthening of the peace."

"For we are threatened by a more extensive and more disastrous calamity that endangers the human family, even as a bloody and difficult war is raging, particularly in areas of East Asia."

Three Plead Guilty at Arraignment

Three persons entered pleas of guilty during an arraignment session Saturday to indictments returned by the September term of Pickaway County Grand Jury.

Another three persons pleaded innocent and five cases were continued, including three secret cases. Pleading guilty to accusations in indictments were:

Franklin E. Sollars, who was handed a $74 suspended fine after charges of grand larceny were reduced to petit larceny.

Charles E. Hamp, 613 Beaver Ave., pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with forcible entry and grand larceny. Judge William Ammer delayed sentencing until Hamp completes a 60-day stay in Lima State Hospital for observation.

LAURENCE Boltenhouse, S. Scioto St., was placed on probation for three years after pleading guilty to non-support charges.

Entering pleas of innocent were Cary Blevins, John Fyffe and George Keaton, all of Circleville, who are accused of assault with a deadly weapon. No date has been set for their hearing.

Cases were continued for Gene Giffin, 476 Dearborn Ave., and Harvey Lee Jordan, Route 1, Chillicothe, both indicted for failing to support their minor children.

Arraignments for the three secret cases will be scheduled at a later date, according to Judge Ammer, along with trial dates for the men who pleaded innocent to the indictment charges.

Turtle Found Home

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The noise in C. B. Roach's car kept going "herplunk," but Roach couldn't find the source.

"I don't care what you do," Roach finally told a mechanic. "Take the car apart. Just find that noise."

The mechanic turned up a turtle behind an upholstery panel. It apparently had nested there for about four months.
